This one-of-a-kind vintage wooden sign followed an unlikely path to the Erie Drive Collection. The MB Cave sign was the lone advertisement to a rural garage in Poland, New York. A long-time customer who was an antique dealer saw true beauty in the sign and constantly pleaded with the owner to sell it to him. The owner always politely declined. The antique dealer, after forty years of rejections, eventually gave up hope.

Recently, the antique dealer answered his phone to find the owner's grief-stricken son on the other end. The son simply said, "My father always told me how much you admired the MB Cave wooden sign. He told me that he wanted you to have it." And in that bittersweet exchange, the sign was gently handed to the antique dealer.

Now this sign and the story behind it can be yours. Purchase this piece and own not just a wonderful piece of Americana, but also the stories of the simple-living, good-hearted people that worked under its shadow for so long.

It's easy to get lost in the hectic routine of your day to day life. This set of retro plates, featuring a variety of diner images, will remind you of all those after school diner visits with childhood friends, taking you back to more youthful, less complex days.

To look upon these melamine plates is to stir up that feeling of comfort associated with home - the feeling that inspired singer-songwriters such as Neil Young to immortalize it in song by singing lines like, "And in my mind, I still need a place to go. All my changes were there." Relive those days with this set of four melamine plates featuring photographs by Joseph Keller.

These plates feature the renowned Deluxe Town Diner in Watertown, MA. Set of four.

The antique number plate comes from one of the oldest classes of locomotives in history. The IRT Low-V was an elevated train that ran during New York City's first transit system. Built during the Roaring 1920s, this Jazz Age classic would have been one of the same trains that Nick Carraway rode in F. Scott Fitzgerald's The Great Gatsby. This ode to metropolitan twilight is sure to unleash your inner flapper.

These historical number plates are in good condition with some minor rusting that adds character. We carry a very limited quantity; in some cases, only one of each number!

They are an Erie Drive Exclusive, and will allow you to adorn your walls with a piece of New York's rich history.

This decorative rendition of Ireland is creatively constructed from the names of popular cities such as Dublin, Cork, Limerick, and Belfast in a background color of your choice - Sheer Slate or Deep Sea Green.

This clever twist on cartography will provide you with a unique, visually pleasing and accurate depiction of the Emerald Isle's counties and cities.

Using the silkscreen printing process made famous by Andy Warhol, these are printed on hand-pulled, off-white recycled card made up of 100% de-inked waste.
