The story of American Academy Jordan begins with a strong foundation through the visionary Nabil Al Far. Well-known throughout the field of education in Amman, Nabil began his career teaching IB and IGCSE physics. Having taught many award-winning students in physics examinations world-wide, Nabil was highly sought after to teach at many top-tier private schools: Montessori, Baccalaureate, & Choueifat.

Over time, Nabil gained great experience teaching among numerous social and economical educational institutes. He recognized a thriving education in Amman. However, something was missing from his hometown—Zarqa. Herein Nabil was stirred to start a new first-class international school and new education for the benefit of Zarqa. AAJ is dedicated to raising students to a higher level of education on an international level with sincere leadership and virtue. AAJ students ask questions like, “How can we serve our home, our neighbors, our city, our country?” “How can we make a difference in this world?”

With great support from inside and outside the education industry, Nabil began building a concept school in Zarqa—American Academy Jordan. Nabil and his wife together sold all their belongings, their home, their savings, even his wife’s gold and jewelry. They then financed loans to begin breaking ground.

“How can we serve our home, our neighbors, our city, our country?”

After two years of development, key well-known people in Jordan came alongside Nabil to become partners with the school. These partners have helped boost the school into the best school in the whole city of Zarqa and rise fast to be one of the top-level schools in Amman and compete internationally.

Since 2011, the school has quickly developed into the first and only international school in Zarqa. AAJ’s student body has now grown beyond expectation. From a high standard of academics, to AAJ’s after school barbecues and social campaigns, AAJ’s scholastic family of students, teachers, families, and workers desire to serve Zarqa, to serve the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan.

Today, Nabil is working with an esteemed group of partners to continue the vision following the concept school in Zarqa. American Academy Jordan seeks to soon expand with at least four new schools throughout Jordan: in Madaba, Salt, Irbid and Aqaba. AAJ is focusing on cities outside Amman with children who would benefit from a chance to participate in the advancement and success of Jordan. AAJ students are encouraged in the love of one’s city, one’s country, and to actively engage the international community. At American Academy Jordan, we sacrifice being merely good at what we do—but to be great in all things.
