

☐

I'm not robot

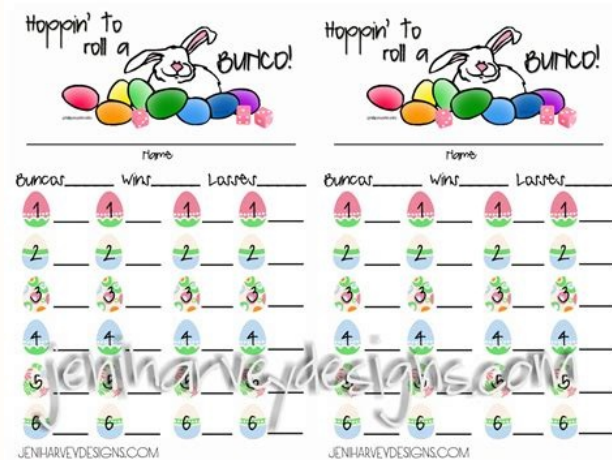

reCAPTCHA

I'm not robot!

Free printable bunco score sheets christmas

Free bunco rules and score sheets. Free bunco score sheets to print. Printable bunco score sheets.

This post may contain affiliate links. As an Amazon associate, I earn from qualifying purchases. Let's play Bunco! Every since I was a young adult, I've enjoyed playing the dice game Bunco with my girlfriends. I was first introduced to this game by a dear friend from church who also happened to be my daughter's babysitter. Plus, today happens to be my sister's birthday and she loves to play board games and card games. So this free set of printable score cards, tally sheets and table tent cards are a tribute to her birthday! Happy birthday, Cindy Lou!! (Lou's not really her middle name, that's just what I call her.) Bunco isn't just a dice game! Bunco is also a great way to get together and socialize with friends on a regular basis. Simply get together with 11 of your friends for a fun get-together. When I first started playing Bunco, we used to play a couple of times a month and we would rotate who hosted the game. (This post contains affiliate links. If you click on a link and make a purchase, I may make a small commission at no additional cost to you!} We prepared some simple snacks and prizes.

Nothing extravagant. We also kept all our Bunco supplies together in a nice little storage bin that we simply passed to the person who would be hosting the Bunco game next. Bunco Rules Before you can play Bunco, I guess it would help to know how to play. Here are the basic rules: Bunco consists of 12 players who are divided into three tables with four players at each table. There are six rounds in each game. Each round is signaled by a player at the head (table #1 - the winners table) table ringing a bell. Players then take turns rolling all three dice to try and earn points. All tables play simultaneously. Players attempt to roll the same number as the number of the round (round 1 - roll ones, round 2 - roll twos, etc.), earning one point for every number rolled that matches the round number. That player's turn continues until they score no more points. The scorekeeper records the score the earned onto the table tally. The turn and dice are then passed to the player on the left. The round is over when the head table earns 21 points or someone rolls a Bunco. A pell is rung to signal the end of the round. If someone rolls a Bunco, they yell "Bunco" and that signals the end of the round. Players change partners and/or tables at the end of every round. At the end of a game, there are typically multiple "winners." The players with the most Buncos, wins, losses, etc, may earn prizes for their successes.

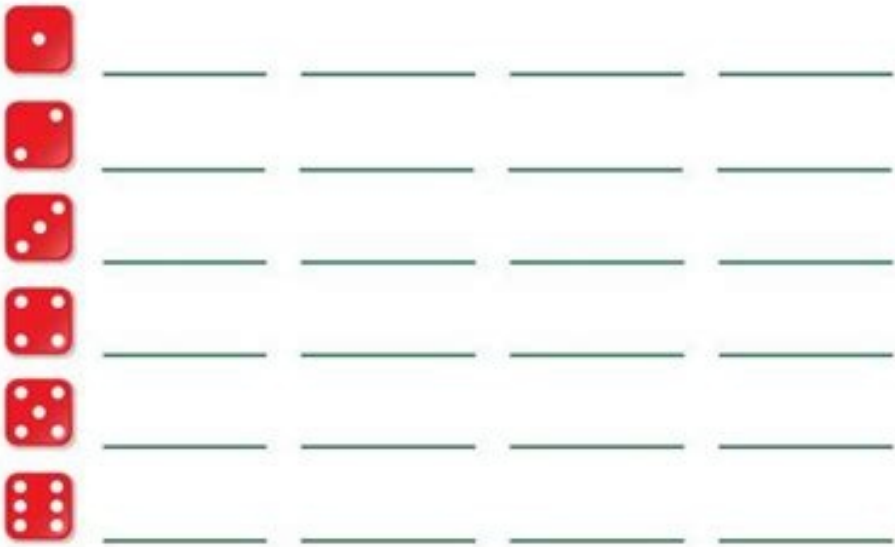

You can find detailed step-by-step instructions at here or on YouTube here. Bunco Supplies There are just a few supplies you will need to play the game of Bunco: Three dice for every table (9 dice if playing with three tables) One Bunco score sheet for every player One Bunco table tally for every table A bell for the head table One pencil for every player Storage container for Bunco supplies Table Tent Cards (optional) You can, of course, purchase an entire Bunco game kit online or at your favorite toy store. Download Bunco Game Printables To help you get started with your first or next Bunco game night, I've created an entire set of coordinating printables that include: Bunco Score Sheet Bunco Table Tally Sheet Bunco Table Tents The Bunco Game Printables are available to subscribers of The Birch Cottage newsletter. Simply sign up to below and you'll receive an email verifying your subscription, along with a link to the Subscribers Resource Library where you'll have access to the Bunco Game Printables and a whole lot more! [newsletter_signup_form id=1] You don't have to have a girls night out to enjoy this fun dice game. You can play with friends or family. Or how about playing a game of Bunco at your next baby shower or New Year's Eve party? I'm really liking the baby shower idea! You could have a lot of fun with this game! Til next time... happy rolling.... Our Bunko Score Sheets are in PDF format. Just click on the picture of the Bunco Score Cards to open the file and print. Four Bunco Score Sheets are printed in color on a 8 1/2" x 11" sheet of paper. Bunco Score Sheets are used to play Bunco. Players record the number of rounds they win and lose as a team, and the number of Buncos they score individually, on their personal scorecard. At the end of the game, prizes are awarded for the most wins, most losses, and most Buncos. Game Overview From: The Bunco Book, First Edition Strictly speaking, bunco is a game of dice, played in rounds. Players take turns rolling the dice and trying to accumulate as many points as possible to win each round. The game is played at tables of four in competing teams of two. Players score points by rolling three dice and trying to match the number they're supposed to roll for that round. They get a point for each die that rolls the number, and if all three roll the number they score 21 points. They also score 5 points for rolling three of a kind of any other number. They get to keep rolling as long as they score one or more points with each roll. Once they fail to score they pass the dice to their left and the opposing team gets a chance to score. During each round the teams at the Head Table try to score 21 points. The first team to score 21 points wins the round and play stops. At all other tables play stops when the Head Table play stops and the team with the highest score at each lower table wins the round. At the end of the round players change seats, the winners at each of the lower tables move up a table, and the losers at the Head table move to the lowest table. Players also switch partners at the end of the round, so you never play with the same partner twice in a row. During play, players track the number of rounds they win and lose as a team, and the number of Buncos scored individually, on their personal scorecard. At the end of the night wins/losses and Buncos are tallied and prizes awarded. Boy, howdy, there are many rules to play Bunco and about as many Bunco score sheet printables! This one includes the simplified version of the play-for-yourself rules with a separate totals section at the bottom to make sorting easier. WHAT YOU NEED TO PLAY BUNCO Snacks! My favorite is Chewy Spree, and chocolate is a must! Three tables with dice-rolling-friendly top and four chairs each. Nine dice, three on each table; four players at each table. Bunco score sheet and pen or pencil for each of the twelve players. Twelve prizes (options are discussed below) THE EASY BUNCO RULES Roll a dice to determine who starts at each table.

SCORE CARD

NAME: _____
WINS: _____ BUNCOS: _____
LOSSES: _____ MINI-BUNCOS: _____

Someone starts each play by yelling or ringing a bell. Always roll three dice until you don't roll the number up.

Play passes to the player on the left when you don't roll the number up. Points tallied on your Bunco score sheet: 1 point for each dice that is the number up 5 points for a triple that isn't the number up 21 points & yell Bunco for a triple of the number up Fuzzy dice (or marker of some sort) for triple 2's (Traveler) The Traveler marker trades to each player that rolls triple 2's A Bunco is a triple of the number up or 21 points. Rolling stops when someone yells Bunco.

BUNCO SCORE SHEET

	GAME 1	GAME 2	GAME 3	GAME 4	GAME 5
1
2
3
4
5
6
TOTAL
BUNCOS _____		WINS _____		LOSSES _____

BUNCO SCORE SHEET

	GAME 1	GAME 2	GAME 3	GAME 4	GAME 5
1
2
3
4
5
6
TOTAL
BUNCOS _____		WINS _____		LOSSES _____

The next number up is the next play. Round ends after 6's.
The player with the lowest points at the end of each round (the 6's) moves to another table. First to roll the next round is the person to the left of the person who started the last round. Game ends after six rounds of six.
Each player totals their own Buncos, Travelers, and points at the bottom of the score sheet. Prizes are divided as follows: most Buncos picks 1st, most points picks 2nd, 3rd and 4th, least points picks 5th, the traveler picks 6th, then the rest of the players pick 7th through 12th in descending order of points. ALTERNATIVE WAYS TO PLAY Teams of two, earning points along with the person sitting across from you. Roll three dice, the number up is on one or two so you leave it/them on the table and roll the other(s) until you don't roll the number up. Head table, second table, and losers table; you work your way up or down the tables as you play. Usually the head table has to roll Bunco to end play even if players from other tables roll Bunco or hit 21 points. Winner takes all; usually done in a cash only game without prizes. Swingers like to play to win other's lovers, but I'd hate to be the last to pick. Dinner before starting, dessert after round three, prizes and mingling when done. The Traveler marker is a pair of fuzzy dice (or other stuffed something) that hangs in the Traveler's rearview mirror until next game. BUNCO PRIZE IDEAS There are a plethora of ways to manage the prizes. My favorite is everyone buys in at the same amount ($10-20) and the prizes are valued at the same price but are variations of the same thing or theme. This is especially handy if players don't want to gamble. If you put in $10 and get a $10 prize back, it's like shopping! EQUAL PRIZE VALUE Prizes could be earrings, necklaces, scarves, candles, moisturizers, auto accessories, hunting and camping gear, taxidermy coupons, restaurant or theme park gift cards. Charming Charlie has amazing scarf patterns and reasonably priced trendy jewelry. Try Cabela's or a local sporting goods store if you're looking for hunting gear. DIFFERING PRIZE VALUE For those who like having differing values of prizes, I'd suggest choosing a theme: spa services and products (massage as the big item then facials, manicures, and nail polish), entertainment (theater tickets, movie tickets, refill concession cups, DVD's, gourmet popcorn, candies), kitchen (gadgets, cookbooks, dish towels, recipe holders, baking pans, Silpat sheets), candles (candle warmers, fancy candles, candelabras, votives, scent refills), summer (passes to the local water park, pedicures, canvas tote filled with snacks, beach towels, suntan lotions, sunscreen, flip flops, sunglasses) and Tupperware (who couldn't use another storage container). HOSTING You could host a one-time Bunco night with friends or coordinate with 12 others who want to share hostessing duties and rotate houses weekly or monthly. However you decide to play Bunco the main objective is to get together with nice people and have fun. THE PRINTABLE This printable is FREE to my LuckyBlogs.com subscribers for hanging in there with me (Wee! It would be NO FUN without you!) If you are new here and aren't already a subscriber, click the SUBSCRIBE button at the top of the page to join the fun of free printables! Your computer must have Adobe Reader to access the file. Click here to download the "Bunco" with Rules Printable 8.5 x 11 (2 score sheets per page) Click here to download the "Bunco" without Rules Printable 8.5 x 11 (2 score sheets per page) *Copyright for personal use only. If you'd like to share this printable, please PIN IT (see button below this sentence) or link to this post.