Fight the Flame® CRPS Awareness Scholarship

The Fight the Flame® CRPS Awareness Scholarship aims to encourage students to raise awareness about Complex Regional Pain Syndrome (CRPS), a chronic, degenerative, neurological pain disorder.

Despite appearing "healthy" on the outside, individuals with CRPS often struggle to manage their pain and lead normal lives. CRPS is an invisible disease, similar to fibromyalgia, depression, diabetes, and eating disorders.

It can be difficult for those with CRPS to cope with others downplaying their illness due to its invisibility. Raising awareness, supporting education, and funding research for CRPS is crucial to finding a cure for this debilitating pain disorder. As part of our advocacy work, we are offering two Fight the Flame® CRPS Awareness Scholarships of $1,000 each to high school seniors.

Section 1:

Essay (500 words):

Complex Regional Pain Syndrome (CRPS) is considered the most painful disease known to modern medicine, yet it remains relatively unknown to the general public. Many CRPS patients do not appear visibly ill and are often overlooked by the medical community. It is important to note that anyone can develop CRPS at any point in their life.

Essay Prompt: How can awareness about an invisible disease like CRPS be raised to help patients, families, and communities access resources for support and treatment?

Section 2:

Spreading CRPS Awareness:

Ask at least 10 people over the age of 18 whether they have ever heard of Complex Regional Pain Syndrome.

- If they have, find out how they learned about it and what information they already know. Then, share any additional information you have learned.
- If they have not heard of it, share the facts about the disease using the information you have researched.
