2 6 Reasons why you should get a ZYTO Bio-communication scan and why it is a good idea to do regular ZYTO scans.

1. Insight into your health and wellness.

ZYTO reports provide you with information that may help you identify individual wellness needs. Identifying items to which you have an unusual response gives you and your wellness advisor insight about health-related conditions that may be keeping you from functioning at a balanced state.

2. Identify your biological coherence for nutrition.

Does one size fit all when it comes to wellness maintenance? Of course not!! ZYTO scans identify which products your body shows the most coherent response; we call it your unique biological coherence. Bio-communication results provide you with personalized information to help you identify the products and supplements that are most coherent for you.

3. Save Money.

Many people purchase nutritional supplements and then try them to see if they will work. Choosing supplements in this way is like purchasing lottery tickets and hoping you will win. ZYTO Bio-communication scans help you identify products for which your body shows a biological coherence. This information helps you purchase with confidence. Your ZYTO scan can help you make informed purchasing decisions.

4. Increase Energy.

Your body consumes its available resources in its effort to maintain a healthy balance. When your body uses those resources to deal with life's extra challenges, like fighting a cold, you will have less energy to perform your day-to-day physical activities. ZYTO helps you identify the additional support your body may need to maintain that balance and keep your energy levels high. By providing your body that extra help when it is needed, you're more likely to address issues while they are small, leaving you with more energy for your friends and family.

5. Track your Health.

ZYTO Bio-communication scans give you information 'in the moment.' But tracking your scans over time may indicate trends that you'll want to pay particular attention to. Keeping track of your past can help you predict the future, and reviewing your past Bio-communication reports gives you essentially a look back through time. The more you know about how your body is impacted by factors like seasons of the year, stress, and aging, the more likely you are to make wise choices about your health and wellness.

6. Verbal Communication has limitations.

Have you ever asked a sick toddler or a child with autism how they are feeling? Even for adults, using words to explain how you feel can be a challenge. Bio-communication opens up an entirely new communication channel with your body. By supplementing our verbal communication with ZYTO Bio-communication, a second perspective is established that can provide helpful insights and information about your health.
