

The Uncivil Society "We Watch the Lemons Sing"

"We Watch the Lemons Sing" includes observational vignettes and political statements. The title track is a song about some dudes I went to Jr. High school with, who would skip school to huff model paints in the lemon grove adjacent to our school. The song and video tells the story of how one day they skipped class and committed to inhaling a whole bottle of paint to themselves. By the end of the day the group shared a mass hallucination where the citrus started to sing the "lemon song".
