

Sara [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

To Whom It May Concern:

Please accept this letter as a personal reference for Kate and Seamus King. I have had the pleasure of knowing Kate and Seamus for the better part of eleven years, mainly in a professional work environment but we are personally close as well.

Kate and Seamus met at work and formed a solid friendship before becoming a couple; this friendship and mutual respect still serves as the foundation of their relationship today. They are extremely compatible, both in lifestyle and values. They are very active, always hiking, skiing, exploring, meeting friends while also becoming established in their careers. They both grew up in the northeast in very close knit families. As Kate and Seamus recently considered their future, they relocated to be near Kate's family in Queens, New York. They bought a lovely home near the beach close to Kate's childhood home where her parents and younger sisters currently live. Kate and Seamus enjoy the best of suburban life, living near the city and surrounded by extended family and in a community in which they are deeply rooted.

Kate is an exceptionally warm and caring person with a magnetic personality. Professionally, I have watched her evolve into a strong female role model with leadership skills and confidence far beyond her years. It's no surprise that Kate has younger sisters, she is a natural mentor and teacher to her junior peers, often the first to put them on the right path. Having earned the trust and respect of her clients and colleagues, Kate is a priceless asset to the global insurance brokerage and consulting firm for which she works. Further, Kate is able to lead a balanced life by arranging to work from her home on a full-time basis.

When I think of an ideal family and home life for a child, I see Kate and Seamus and the foundation they have built together. Being a parent takes teamwork, patience and a sense of humor, these are all qualities that occur naturally to Kate and Seamus, something that bonds them together as a couple and something they can readily share with a child.

I wholeheartedly recommend Kate and Seamus King as candidates for adoptive parenthood. They are in an ideal position to be nurturers and providers. They are mentally, emotionally and financially prepared for this chapter in their lives and I can confidently say that any child will thrive under their love, care and guidance.

Regards,

Sara S.
Sara S. [REDACTED]

January 29, 2021