To whom it may concern,

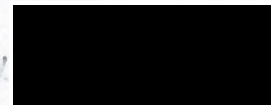

I am writing on behalf of my friends Kate and Seamus King. I have known Kate since grade school, having attended the same grammar and high school, and grew up within a block of one another. Through the years our friendship has strengthened and blossomed, and she is one of my greatest friends, one that I know I will have for life. Through my friendship with Kate, I have had the privilege to get know and befriend Seamus, who is one of the kindest people I have ever met. Their relationship is one to admire, for their ability to work together, overcome obstacles, and enjoy this journey of life together, makes them not only a great husband and wife, but a great team.

Though I am a year older than Kate, she has matched, if not surpassed, my level of maturity through the years. Her drive and motivation helped push me as a young teenager. I was amazed at how focused she was on achieving her goals. She was a great motivator on our swim team, helping me do my best and push myself in the pool. Kate continued to be one of the most driven people I know when she graduated college, and decided to stay in Boston for work, which always amazed me. She wasn't afraid to take a risk starting fresh in a new city. She set a goal for self, and went after it. During her time in Boston, she would eventually meet her perfect match, Seamus. Seamus matches Kate's drive, and they complement each other so well.

What really makes them the perfect match, is how much they value and admire one another. Together they established a life, in which they set a goal and work hard to achieve it as a team. They have moved back to New York, wanting to be closer to family and friends, and established a beautiful life in their new home by the beach. This summer was their first summer in their new house, and when one walks in, you feel welcomed and loved. It feels like home. This is how I know that Kate and Seamus will make amazing parents!

Any child would be blessed to join this family, and have the opportunity of making the King home their forever home. I am happy to answer any questions you may have, or to assist in any way to help Kate and Seamus in meeting their goal in becoming parents!

Sincerely,

Kristeen
