My doctor told me to eat more Taco Bell. Well, he actually said "less McDonald's," but I'm pretty sure I know what he meant.

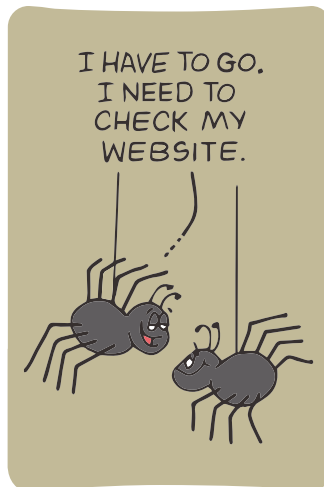

First-grade teacher: "There are two words I don't allow in my class. One is 'gross,' and the other is 'cool.'"

Rachel: "Yeah? So, what are the words?"

My 5-year-old nephew, Felix, wanted to caddy for my brother. "You have to be able to count my strokes," my brother told him. "How much is six plus nine plus eight?" "Five," answered Felix. "Okay," my brother replied, "let's go!"

Teacher: "Paul, give me a sentence with a direct object."
 Paul: "Everyone thinks you're the best teacher in school."
 Teacher: "Thank you, Paul, but what is the object?"
 Paul: "To get the best grade possible."

A man was applying for a job as a correctional officer. The warden said, "Now, these are real tough guys in here. Can you handle it?" "No problem," the applicant replied. "If they don't behave, out they go!"

I started out with nothing ...
 And I still have most of it.

Diner Lingo

Adam and Eve on a raft - poached eggs on toast

Birdseed - cereal

Burn the British - a toasted English muffin

Cow feed - a salad

Dough well done with cow to cover - buttered toast

First lady - spare ribs (a pun on Eve being made from Adam's spare rib)

High and dry - a plain sandwich without butter, mayo, or lettuce

In the alley - serve as a side dish

No cow - without milk

On wheels - an order to be packed and taken out

Put out the lights and cry - liver and onions

Sea dust - salt

Sinkers and suds - doughnuts and coffee

The twins - salt and pepper shakers

Wreck 'em - scramble the eggs

Zeppelins in a fog - sausages in mashed potatoes

My 90-year-old father was at the store trying to pay for his groceries. The transaction evidently took too long for the man behind him in line. Dad stopped counting his money, turned around, and warned, "Be quiet, or I'll write a check."
