Recently, I traveled to Arizona to the Albuquerque Balloon Festival which is a great experience. There are hundreds of balloons in all shapes and designs. The other exciting part of the festival is that you can go right up to the balloons as they blow them up or as they take off into the sky.

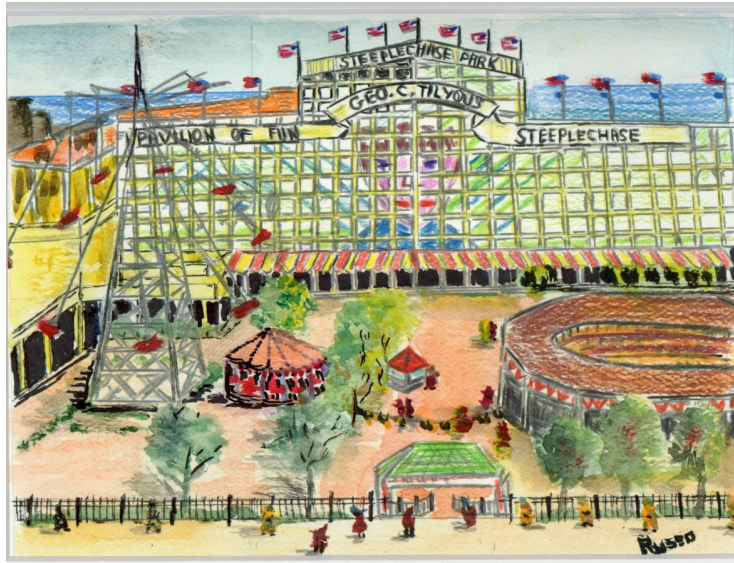

Why is Albuquerque known as the hot-air-ballooning capital of the world? Conditions – Albuquerque has the optimal weather conditions for hot air ballooning, which include wind conditions and air temperature. Both of these factors contribute to successful hot air ballooning and Albuquerque has the perfect mix. Albuquerque's predictable wind patterns, known as the "Albuquerque Box," make it easy for balloon pilots to navigate in the Rio Grande Valley. The area's cool air temperature in the early morning also helps the balloons rise faster and handle better.

The festival is absolutely beautiful with beautiful colors and the surrounding mountains are stunning as the sun rises over the mountains. Another part of the festival is the drone show prior to the balloon launch. Drone shows are beautiful because they combine art, science, technology, and creativity to create mesmerizing displays in the sky.

Custom Art

A customer found me on an Old Brooklyn Group on a FaceBook site. The customer asked me to draw a picture of the Steeplechase Amusement Park that was in Coney Island Brooklyn. I looked at the photo and created this art piece for the customer.
