About the Author

Jennifer Geiger, the author of “Witness” and its companion workbook, now releases her new book, “Patmos.” Born in Kansas Jennifer now lives in Blacklick, Ohio with her husband, Jim. Married over thirty years, she is the mother of three grown daughters and has eight grandchildren, one great grandchild and one on the way. She is an active member of her church where she is involved in several ministries.

As a child, Jennifer was known as a storyteller, a habit she continued after marrying and having children of her own. She claims there’s something intriguing about inter-blending words and watch as they paint a picture in the minds of the listener. She was challenged often to write out her stories so others could enjoy. This is what she did in her first book, “Witness,” a story about life with Jesus through the eyes of the disciple He loved. Accompanying “Witness,” she completed a companion workbook to be used in an eight-session in-depth Bible study. Her latest novel, “Patmos” picks up where “Witness” left off and continues John’s adventures as he is banished because of his beliefs to an isle of the same name.

About Patmos

Written as an independent book, “Patmos” can either be read as a stand-alone or as a sequence to her first book, “Witness.” In this reading you will feel as if you were there, right along with John, as an old man, during his exile to the desert island of Patmos. On his arrival to the island, John has flash backs of his life prior to his banishment. He recalls times with Jesus, starting with his first encounter until witnessing his accession back to heaven. In “Patmos” you’ll walk with John as he meets and interacts with the local natives, and gets a first-hand glimpse as God takes him forward in time leaving him both horrified and exhilarated.

You’ll see heaven with its streets of gold and hear Jesus as He reveals through revolutionary visions the end of days. Most importantly, you’ll walk with John, the disciple Jesus loved, and feel as if you too had been on the isle with him.

Sample Chapter

“Have you ever awoke from a dream and realized you were unaware of your surroundings? Dazed, confused, you grope for answers, searching for clues to help get your bearings. If you’ve ever felt this way, you’re not alone. It was much the reaction I experienced the day I woke on a deserted beach partially submerged in water. Overhead, birds were chirping, flying about their daily routine. From beneath, a burning sensation ripped through my back as sand seeped into the exposed wounds left by the beatings. Gagging from the seawater washed into my mouth, I sat up coughing. My eyes, on fire from the salt of the sea, make opening them difficult. Blinking repeatedly, I force them open. Squinting from the brilliance of the sun, my mind races for answers; I’m puzzled and wonder, “Where am I?” In the back of my mind, bits and pieces of events start falling into place, and the memories begin taking shape. Finally, I remember...my shoulders slump and it all comes back.”

CAPTIVATING STORYTELLER!

Thank you, Jennifer Geiger, for taking a great leap in faith following God's leading in the writing of "Patmos." What comes to mind when I read the Revelation of Christ given to John, is the fulfillment of God's promises laced throughout Scripture; rarely have I given any thought to the man whom God chose to reveal His prophecy. I am profoundly grateful for this book and to Jennifer for opening my eyes to what the apostle John's life may have been like during his banishment to the isle of Patmos.

A NEW PERSPECTIVE

Patmos by Jennifer Geiger left me with a new perspective on the exile of the disciple John. The book should not be read in a hurry but in a way to contemplate John's journey, his adversities and through the faithfulness of God, his ability to overcome. I recommend you read John's journey and draw encouragement from God that He has a plan for each of us.
