

Lance and Erin head across the parking-lot

LANCE REYNOLDS

Where are you parked?

ERIN CAMBRIDGE

(pointing to her car)

Just over there.

LANCE REYNOLDS

So how are you liking the city so far?

ERIN CAMBRIDGE

(relaxing a bit)

Well it's a little different than the west coast. Well actually it's a-lot different, It's much slower.

LANCE REYNOLDS

That's not a bad thing is it?

ERIN CAMBRIDGE

Actually it's not, but once you get used to a certain pace, anything different kind of throws you off, you know.

LANCE REYNOLDS

I get it. I'm not from here either.

ERIN CAMBRIDGE

No?

LANCE REYNOLDS

No, I'm originally from Philadelphia. I moved here for a fresh start about 6 years ago.

ERIN CAMBRIDGE

Why here?

LANCE REYNOLDS

Well, I decided I needed a change, so I packed everything into my car and started driving. I told myself that I wasn't going to stop until the gas tank hit E, and when it did, I was here. I had just gotten my medical license so I went into private practice.

(They reach her car.)

LANCE REYNOLDS (CONT'D)

Hey I know you said your busy and all, but I'd love to have a drink and talk some more, no pressure just drinks.

(She looks at him, considering.)

ERIN CAMBRIDGE

Well My friend turned me on to a nice place over on 5th.

LANCE REYNOLDS

Ahh, I no the place well.

ERIN CAMBRIDGE

We could stop up there and have a quick cocktail.

LANCE REYNOLDS

Sounds good.

ERIN CAMBRIDGE

Just one and done.

LANCE REYNOLDS

One and done, I promise.

ERIN CAMBRIDGE

I'll meet you there

LANCE REYNOLDS

I'm right behind you.

(He walks off towards his car.)
