INT. ART GALLERY

A joyful Grace walks through an art gallery, a few people mill about looking at various artworks. A man nears her, JOE. He nears her, staring at the same art she is looking at.

JOE
It's misleading.

Grace is unsure if he's talking to her.

GRACE
E Excuse me.

JOE
This piece, its misleading.

GRACE
How so.

JOE
Well on one hand they want you to feel happy, but if you really look at it, it's a sad piece.53.

GRACE
And you know that because?

JOE
Because of the pattern choice, so erratic and non cohesive. Not to mention the colors; grey, blues, greens. It is definitely sad.

Grace stares harder at the piece.

GRACE
I can see why you would think that but I have a different opinion.

JOE
Do tell.

GRACE
Well those colors are all on the outside and they form a circle, but you see the circle is broken and a yellow streak comes out. It's like happiness found a way out.

Joe stares at the picture.

JOE

Wow, you're right. By the way I'm
Joe.

(extending his hand)

GRACE

Grace.

JOE

Nice to meet you Grace. So do you visit these types of places often.

GRACE

Well I do as much.... I mean I did visit them as much as I could, and you?

JOE

First time ever.

JOE

No, I was just passing by, had the time and figured I try some new found things with all this new found time.
