

White Maple Plain Sliced Veneer

Species Color & Tone: White Maple Plain Sliced Veneer provides a pale, creamy base with soft yellow undertones and limited pink, ideal when you want bright, clean surfaces. It shines in natural, lightly toned, or opaque finishes rather than heavy transparent dark stains, which can blotch. Maple veneer is often used for trim, panels, and casework that need to coordinate or stain match with Western Hemlock ceilings.

Grain & Appearance: Plain Sliced Maple combines tight, fine grain with soft cathedrals and very low contrast between earlywood and latewood. The surface reads smooth and controlled from the floor, making it an excellent neutral backdrop for graphics, signage, and integrated lighting.
