

S. Megan Parker

Megan earned her bachelor's degree in communication studies at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and her juris doctorate at Georgia State University's College of Law. Megan became a registered neutral in law school and mediated hundreds of landlord-tenant and small claims cases in Fulton County within the court-annexed mediation program before graduation.

After passing both Florida and Georgia bars, Megan practiced civil law, specializing in insurance work before settling into her career as a mediator. She currently owns a full-time mediation practice, Two Roads Mediation, LLC, and mediates civil and domestic cases across metro (and not-so-metro) counties around Atlanta.

In her free time, Megan and her husband volunteer and foster animals with the Atlanta Humane Society. They also enjoy reading, scuba diving, and board games.
