Sponsorship Opportunities:

12th Annual/3rd Virtual LFFoA
February 14 – 23, 2025

The Premier Film Festival Focused on Later Life Experiences

Film still above from: A Great Ride (2018, Dir. Deborah Craig).

Every day in America, 10,000 people turn 65, and are living longer than ever before. Now is a wonderful opportunity to present the lived experiences of our elders and acknowledge their valuable role in our society.

The Legacy Film Festival on Aging, having moved from in-person theaters to online streaming, enables access to audiences from across the US and around the world.

The festival offers graduated sponsorship levels with expanded benefits (see p. 5) to capitalize on your organization's exposure, as well as its support of the festival's mission: to inspire, entertain, and educate intergenerational audiences on the challenges and triumphs of aging.

With your organization's support, we can inspire younger and older adults alike to value their journey to later life.

AUDIENCE REACH

Our email newsletters go out to over 2,000 subscribers. For an archive of our newsletters, including standalone programs we've presented in 2024, click HERE.

AGE OF LFFoA AUDIENCE

The Legacy Film Festival on Aging celebrates the aging process as profound and meaningful, often challenging, and always courageous. Will we “age gracefully” crankily, or painfully—or defiantly? Our films portray some of the many facets of this unique, ever-changing experience honestly and artfully and always with compassion and love for their subjects.

Sheila Malkind,
Founder and Executive Director,
Legacy Film Festival on Aging

Sheila Malkind experienced a stroke in 2020. Now, at age 86, as the Founder and Executive Director of the Legacy Film Festival on Aging, presenting its 12th year of films on Aging, her mission is unchanged: to present films about later life that entertain, educate and inspire. Sheila's still curious to hear and see other people's stories of growing older, from other places near and far — stories told to us from the viewpoints of our creative filmmakers.
