

The Director of Product Management will be responsible for defining, driving and delivering product capabilities for Mobile & Desktop Applications. The group is responsible for the desktop/ mobile app, APIs and other extensibility tools, app ecosystem, UX, enterprise, and other capabilities that span across the product offering. You'll be expected to champion the vision, have a sharp business acumen, speak developer and have an intimate understanding of our customer.

How You Contribute to Our Vision

- You will manage a team of application team product managers, driving the product vision, strategy and the product roadmap.
- Build compelling business cases that articulates the value for new product/feature development
- Make prioritization and trade-off decisions based on concrete research and analysis
- Define and prioritize product enhancements that address customer needs
- Create and deliver compelling product strategy content and messages
- Understand competitive solutions and market forces to derive product planning implications
- Guide go-to-market strategies and messaging by collaborating early with business stakeholders
- Partner closely with Business Development to identify and analyze strategic partner alliances
- Act as an advocate for the customer to ensure we are solving the right problems in the right way
- Lead, coach and develop talented product managers

About You

- 7+ years of strategic product planning and product execution experience
- People management experience; building, leading and mentoring high performing teams
- Expertise in Enterprise product management
- Partner relationship management and/or app store experience
- Experience in new product development in Agile/Scrum delivery approach
- Excellent interpersonal and communication skills
- Proven ability to partner and collaborate cross-functionally and at all levels
- Effectively balance strategic/business acumen with deep-dive technical/engineering