Super Duty Fork

the tube axle on the Ford Super Duty model 2002 require a special fork that prevents the axle from denting. This half round fork fits snug around the axle and is designed to prevent this from happening. Using regular frame forks will damage or dent the axle. #250213800

Volvo Axle Bracket Fork - SteerTek Fork

Hendrickson STEERTEK AXLES doesn't allow use of forks on the axle itself. Freightliner as well as Volvo trucks use the new axle and school busses will be equipped with same axle from July 2003. Most trucks will have this type of axle and can only be lifted by the lower axle wraps. Towing the vehicle by the axle will cause scarring and resultant damage to the axle and void warranty. #250513900

Nova Fork for Flat Towing

Nova Fork for Flat Towing #261000000

2.5" U-Bolt Fork

This fork is designed to fit between the U-bolts. This type of lift will prevent the truck from sliding since the U-bolts prevent the fork from moving along the axle. The fork opening is 2.5" which fits the typical light to medium size truck axles. International 47/4900 series are a typical chassis for this fork. #250513600
$179.03 ea Non Member or $146.48 ea Member

Spring Fork

The self-aligning spring fork is one of the most popular forks and attaches to the spring itself. Four different positions for the fork lock pin ensure a snug fit. The fork hinging feature permits alignment with the spring during lift. The spring hangers are always located up front or close to the bumper. This will decrease the load on the tow truck's axle, i.e. the closer you can pull in the towed vehicle the less weight on your rear axles. Always secure the towed vehicle with safety chains on both sides before towing. Make sure the chains are damage free and have the correct grade and size. #82200814
$358.05 ea Non Member or $292.95 ea Member

Self Loading Fork

Chain Fork

Chain fork is used in many ways. The chain fork lifts a completely wrecked truck - no axles or tires -and the under reach functions as a tow bar. The chain forks are milled from one high tensile steel bar and accept 1/2" to 5/8" chain. #82200813

9" Tall Fork

When you can't find the right fork try our versatile 9" tall fork and use the chassis frame as lifting point. One finger of the fork enters a hole in the cross member and prevents the towed vehicle from sliding. Attach your safety chains accordingly. 4 3/4" x 9 5/16"
#250212900 $225.23 ea Non Member or $184.28 ea Member

6.5" Wide Rear Axle Fork

Lifting trucks from the rear can sometimes be difficult. Newer trucks are equipped with air ride or air bags which limit the lifting sites. The axle housing is one of the more popular places, however forks must be wide and tall enough. Some trucks such as Peterbilt have unequal width housings. We designed the 5.5" and 6" forks to "fit them all" so that you can use them on most trucks without using high stands to get clearances. #250512600

4.5" Wide Tall Fork

Most towing is performed by lifting the axle. These forks are designed for that purpose but can be used in many other ways. When lifting the axle make sure that the forks are positioned as close as possible to the U-bolts. This to avoid a sliding effect in turns. Bottom photo shows how the fork is lifted behind the spring hangers. This method allows the operator to reduce stinger extension to effect a reduced rear axle weight. Safety chains should always be used to prevent the towed vehicle from falling off. Make sure the chains are correctly attached and have no defects. #82200805

$205.59 ea Non Member or $168.21 ea Member

4.5" Short Wide Fork

Most towing is performed by lifting the axle. These forks are designed for that purpose but can be used in many other ways. When lifting the axle make sure that the forks are positioned as close as possible to the U-bolts. This to avoid a sliding effect in turns. Bottom and right side photos shows how the 3.25" tall fork is lifting behind the spring hangers. This method allows the operator to reduce stinger extension to effect a reduced rear axle weight. Safety chains should always be used to prevent the towed vehicle from falling off. #82200807

5 x 5 Receiver (Driver Side)

5 x 5 receivers have 2 fork holes for easy hook-up. The outer hole is offset and gives you extra width during axle or frame lift. Shifting one receiver from passenger side to the driver's side will decrease the distance between receivers. The receiver is a low-mount design which enables the fork to "sneak" under low bumpers and, when inverted, gives you extra height. #250231000

$344.19 ea Non Member or $281.61 ea Member

3.5" x 3.5" Receiver

3 1/2" x 3 1/2" receivers have 2 fork holes for easy hook-up. The outer hole is offset and gives you extra width during axle or frame lift. Shifting one receiver from passenger side to the driver's side will decrease the distance between receivers. (see middle pictures).

The receiver is a low-mount design which enables the fork to "sneak" under low bumpers and, when inverted, gives you extra height. #250260000D (driver side) or #250260000P

7" High Stand

High Stands raise the fork to a higher position. The need may arise when the suitable fork is not tall enough to reach the desired lift point, that the stinger hits the bumper before the fork is in position, or in similar situations. The high stands are 7" tall and are available in two models. One has the standard 2" shaft and the other is a "slide on" type for 4x4, 5x5, 6x4 or 6x6 inches cross bars. (see part # 250213100).

We recommend the slide on style since it is more rigid than the 2" shaft model. When high stands are used, make sure the towed vehicle is secured by extra safety chains and that the "swaying motion" is limited as much as possible. #82200815

Tow Eye Suggestions We now know a better way – Low Profile Exotic Straps

#LP11-EC44 – This strap was specifically designed for Tesla & most high end luxury automobiles where the tie rod end is very close to the lower control arm. This “soft touch” V strap allows you to load most cars without using the tow eye! WLL 5,400 lbs @ 60 degrees 2” strap with 4’5” reach
$82.85 each Non Member $70.29 ea Member

This is a better way to reduce leverage on the “tow eye” & keeps hook away from the car.

The “OLD WAY” was using a purple loading strap.

Wes says stay away from these pull pins.

“I really feel like LOW PROFILE EXOTIC STRAP is the best choice” - Wes

Steering Wheel Locks

We recommend using a Steering Wheel Lock whenever towing any vehicle, whether you are towing forwards or backwards. If there is a failure, you want the vehicle straight behind you.

Top of Steering Wheel Lock is a loop

1. Hold loop against bottom of steering wheel with buckle facing dashboard
2. Pull entire steering wheel lock under steering wheel and thread it through the loop. (like putting on a necktie)
3. Place bottom hook of steering wheel lock under seat mount to seat strut and tighten with buckle.

Note 1. After you adjust belt to a snug fit when closing, the buckle will automatically tighten lock more

Note 2. Buckle releases by pressing "Push to Release" button on buckle.

Low Profile V Strap for Exotic Vehicles

#LP11-EC44 This strap was specifically designed for Tesla and most high end luxury automobiles where the tie-rod end is very close to the lower control arm. This "soft touch" V Strap allows you to load most cars without using a tow eye! WLL 5400 lbs @ 60 degrees 2' strap with 4'5" Reach.

This is a better way to reduce leverage on the "tow eye" & keeps hook away from the car. The old way was using a purple loading strap. Wes says stay away from these pull pins.

"I really feel like LOW PROFILE EXOTIC STRAP is the best choice" - Wes

Exceed Working Load Limit, Death or Injury Can Occur!

BA Products has always advertised the working load limits of their wire rope assemblies at a 5:1 ratio. This is the standard for overhead lifting wire rope. However, there is a national SAEJ standard that specifies a ratio specific to towing and recovery procedures for wire rope: SAEJ959. This code states that a ratio of 3.55:1 is to be used for all wire rope used on a towing and or a recovery unit. Below are the updated Working Load Limits for this 3.55:1 ratio.

All wire rope is 6 x 25 Extra Improved Plow Steel (EIPS) unless noted

Be sure to leave enough wire rope on the "dead end" to use the recommended three wire clamps to secure.
