

Lawrence & Jodie Elroy

New Tribes Mission

Lawrence and Jodie were both saved at a young age but admit that they did not grow spiritually. While attending college, God re-directed their lives to a different type of education, learning about God's word. During their time at New Tribes Bible Institute they not only learned the bible, but were made aware of tribal missions. It was at that time that they committed to becoming career missionaries.

The Elroys have just begun home assignment after serving their first four-year term in Asia-Pacific where Lawrence serves as a pilot and mechanic. He thoroughly enjoys both, being a pilot and serving others. Lawrence states, "I have the best job and best boss in the world. It doesn't get any better than this!"

Lawrence and Jodie have two children, Sarah age 17 and Seth age 16. Jodie not only homeschooled both Sarah and Seth, but was also involved with supply buying and MK education on the field. They look forward to returning to the field after Sarah and Seth finish high school.
