

Partner with Imperial Beach Technology to Help Restore Imperial Beach

A call to San Diego corporations, employers, investors, innovators, and civic leaders to partner on technology, local recovery, and long-term resilience.

A Regional Crisis Demands Regional Action

Imperial Beach is facing a crisis that affects more than one community. The ongoing contamination impacting our beaches, air, businesses, families, schools, and public spaces is a regional issue that demands regional action.

Imperial Beach Technology is calling on San Diego's corporate community to partner with us and move beyond concern into measurable impact.

Innovation should serve people first.

Clean water, clean air, safe beaches, and healthy neighborhoods are not optional. They are the foundation of a strong region.

We are ready to work with corporations, foundations, business leaders, and investors prepared to turn action into impact.

San Diego's corporations have helped build world-class industries, research centers, tourism campaigns, and innovation hubs. Now we ask you to help build a healthier, safer future for Imperial Beach.

We are seeking partners ready to:

- 1 Support local people
Help residents, families, schools, and small businesses affected by contamination, closures, health concerns, and hardship.
- 2 Invest in technology
Improve environmental monitoring, public communication, water-quality awareness, air-quality awareness, and community safety.
- 3 Provide resources
Bring sponsorships, grants, volunteers, professional expertise, and strategic support to local response efforts.
- 4 Amplify Imperial Beach
Stand publicly with the community and call for urgent federal, state, local, and binational action.
- 5 Build long-term resilience
Invest in local programs, workforce development, emergency-response tools, and community-centered infrastructure.

This is not just an Imperial Beach issue. It is a San Diego regional responsibility.

Partner with Imperial Beach Technology.

Support local recovery. Invest in solutions. Help restore our coast.
