

CABINET IQ

The Cabinet IQ Difference

Not all cabinet companies are built the same. Here's what sets us apart.

	Cabinet IQ of Portland	Other Cabinet Companies
Levels of Cabinetry	We carry entry-level through premium cabinetry, so you can put the budget where it matters most and value-engineer the rest.	Most cabinet companies sell one tier. You work around their product line, not the other way around.
Reputation	Cabinet IQ has more 5-star Google reviews from real clients than the next several competitors combined — backed by a national network with thousands of completed projects.	Reviews are inconsistent and hard to verify. Most local competitors lack the volume or track record to compare.
Quality Assurance	Before your order is placed, we send a project manager to remeasure your space and run a 57-point QA review. We believe in measure twice, cut once — and we act on it.	Most companies measure once and order. If a mistake is made, you find out on install day — when it's already too late.
Pre-Construction Checklists	Most homeowners have never been through a remodel before. We walk you through exactly what needs to be ready before our team arrives — so nothing gets delayed.	Most cabinet companies assume you've done this before. When something isn't ready, it becomes your problem.
Full-Time Installers	Our installers are full-time employees, not subcontractors. They're trained, accountable, and invested in the outcome of every project they touch.	Most cabinet companies hand your project to a subcontractor after the sale. Your experience depends entirely on whoever is available.
Dedicated Project Management	You get a direct line to a dedicated project manager from design through completion, plus a scheduler who tracks your materials and keeps your timeline on track.	Most companies operate with a salesperson and a sub-contracted installer. Once the sale is closed, you're largely on your own.
