

The Juan Diego Badge Scrapbook

Steven Kenyatta Briggs

This is the Juan Diego badge –which can also be referred to as Juan Diego’s badge; named after Juan Diego Cuauhtlatotzin.

Juan Diego's badge is one of two badges located in the lower left corner of Nuestra Señora de Guadalupe. To learn more, I encourage you to read Killing Guadalupe. You can also learn more in The Wagers and The Elder Badge.

This booklet was created in a couple of hours on the afternoon of May 26th, 2025, and was/is intended to be sort of a scrapbook of images, without a lot of words.

What follows are images found in the Juan Diego's badge.

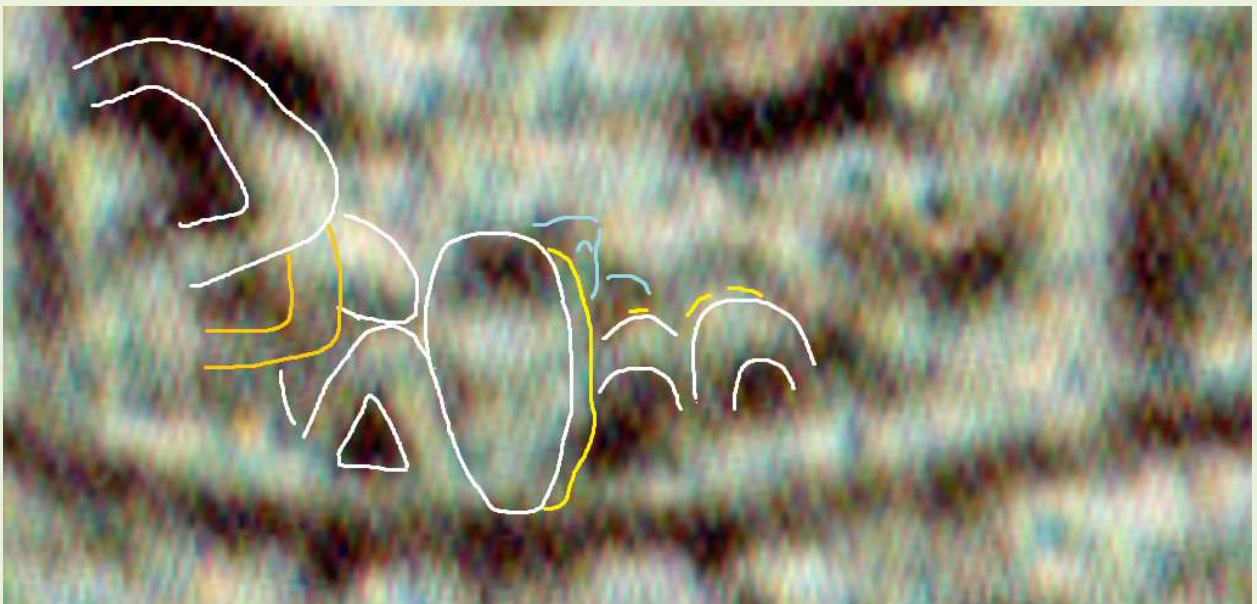

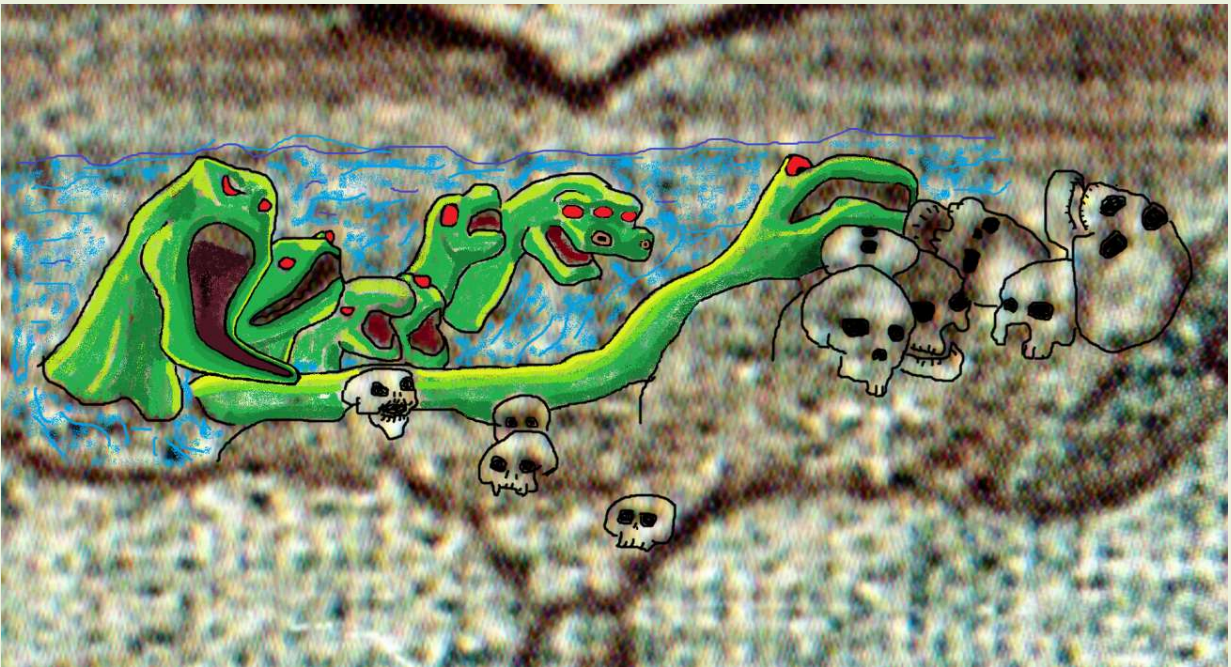

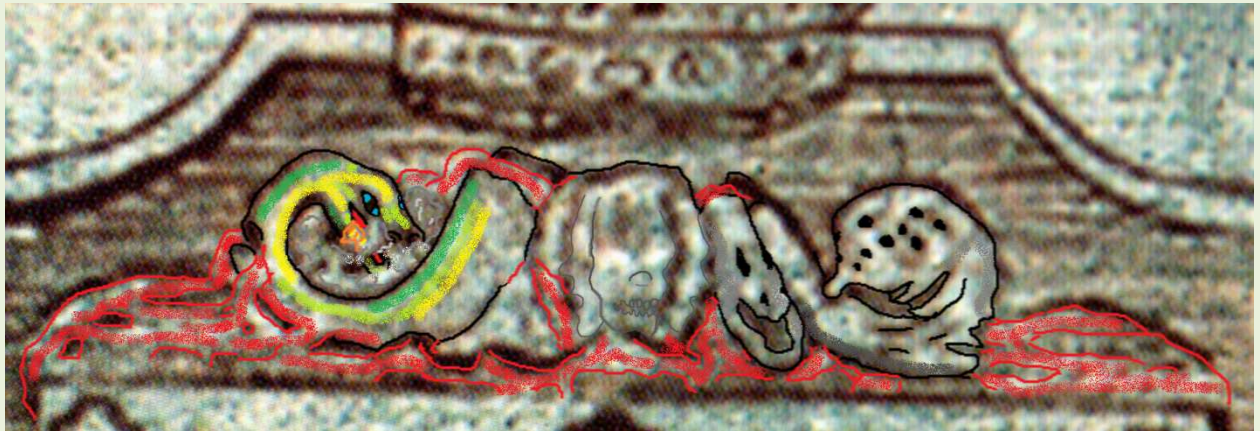

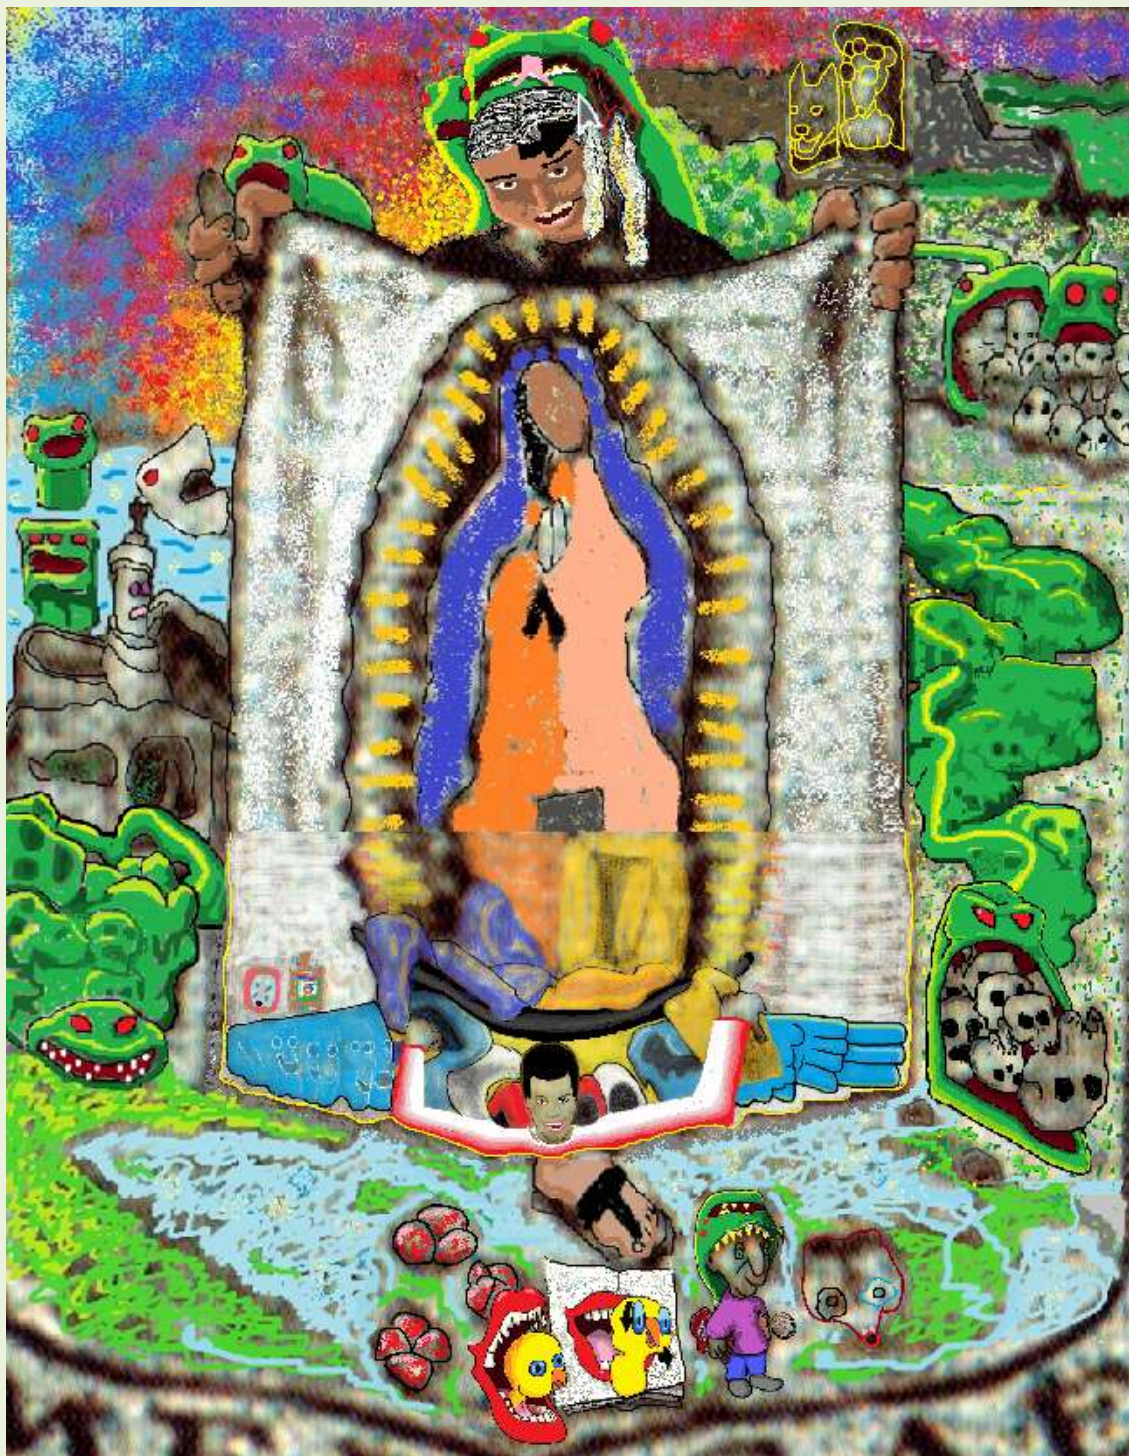

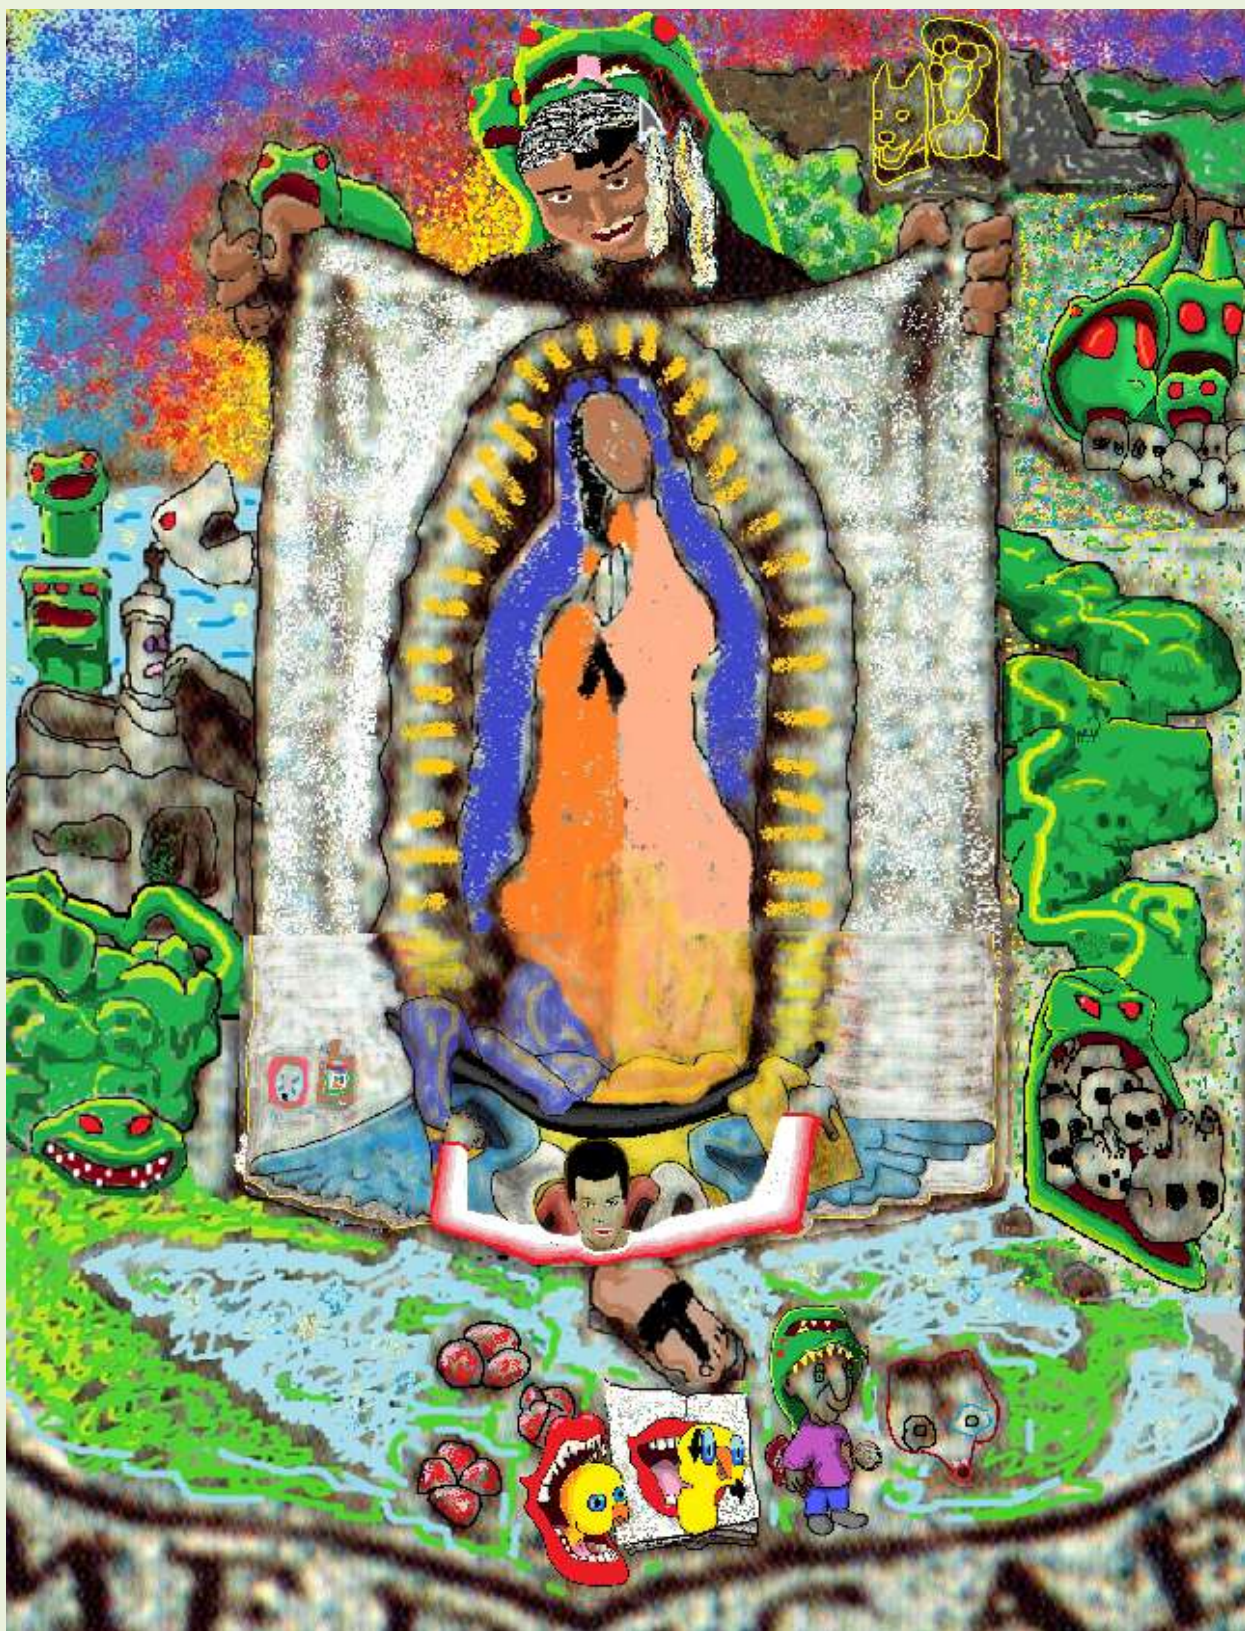

This is sort of how I originally saw the central image (although seeing some of the images within this image, correctly, took weeks). Later I saw the image more as you see it on the next page (although, today, I see the eyes of the young snake-beast on the left, coming out of its parent's mouth, as much smaller than depicted on the next page).

This scrapbook was originally published May 26th, 2025.
