National Vietnam War Veterans Day is March 29th Welcome Home!

On March 29th, Americans will have the solemn privilege to honor our military service personnel who served in the Vietnam War Era.

The Vietnam War Veterans Recognition Act, signed into law in 2017, designates March 29 of each year as National Vietnam War Veterans Day and coincides with the very date in 1973 when the last of the combat troops withdrew from Vietnam marking the end of the war.

It is a day meant to “Welcome Home” all of those men and women who served our Nation during the Vietnam War and returned home.

Simultaneously, we honor and remember our U.S. Servicemembers who did not return home at the close of the war, our POW/MIA - those last seen as Prisoners-Of-War, those last declared Missing-In-Action. Today, 1,584 Americans are not yet home from the Vietnam War Era.

In fact, since record keeping began, since World War II – more than 81,000 Americans remain missing and unaccounted for today.

Across the Nation, Americans are uniting to thank and honor Vietnam veterans and their families for their service and sacrifice. This is the main focus of The United States of America Vietnam War Commemoration.

Much like Former Prisoner of War Day, Armed Forces Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, POW/MIA Recognition Day, Veterans Day, and others – National Vietnam War Veterans Day is about a “culture of remembrance” – individually and collectively as a society – in interacting with our past and our history – truly honoring and remembering that Our Freedom Today – Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness – was earned by Those Defending Our Nation and is not, will not, will never be, free. With that comes great responsibility to “interact” with our Servicemembers, Veterans, Their Families, those swearing An Oath of Enlistment Today - Our Past Together, Our Present Together, Our Future Together.
