WORDS FROM

Our Interim Pastor

Welcome to OCTOBER! It's the month for us at Nativity of settling into a new routine. In the light of Hurricanes Irma and Jose and Maria and the horrific earthquake disaster in Mexico City it can't be "getting back to normal" – many are saying the old normal is never going to return ... the normal that's new is going to be new every time we look.

Well, 500 years ago when Martin Luther simply suggested a bunch of issues that needed debating [whether he really did nail the list to the door of the Castle Church in Wittenberg or not], he sure didn't realize that things would never be the same. Not only for the church, but for all of the institutions of society. He'd never have imagined.

At least I don't think so. Because what he was championing is a simple, clear message that we, whose sin can only find us in trouble with a righteous God who holds us accountable, find ourselves judged righteous in that very God's eyes, by grace, through faith, for the sake of Jesus Christ. How simple can it get?

Well, these last Sundays we've spent hearing the implications of what we pray all the time in the Lord's Prayer. Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. We've been reminded that we're forgiven so that we may be forgiving ... that we get to practice what we preach ... walk the talk.

NEWSLETTER OF NATIVITY LUTHERAN CHURCH & SCHOOL
PALM BEACH GARDENS, FLORIDA

So we thank God for that simple reminder for the church and all the baptized so that we can try to keep it simple. Thank God for God the Father's grace. Thank God for giving us the faith through the Holy Spirit. Thank God for his gift in his only Son, our Lord Jesus.

It's God's "new normal" for us ... putting aside that which is past and taking on that which is new, freeing us from the consequences of our past for a future of possibility and promise. And having received the gift with thanks, let's spend our lives sharing it with all we encounter!

Pastor Lutze

P.S. Please note that we have discontinued our Thursday Morning Table Talks. I don't think it was a wrong idea; I think it was the time we chose.

[Minutes of the September 20 Congregation Council meeting are not available as of the time of publication of the newsletter. They will be made available in another fashion as soon as they are ready.]

CHOIR REHEARSALS

Any man interested in singing with the men's choir, please join rehearsals each Sunday in the sanctuary directly after worship at 10:30am. Adult choir rehearsals are each Tuesday at 6:30pm and Bell Choir meets at 7:30pm on Tuesdays. Everyone is welcome to join any of our choirs.

UPCOMING Events

SPECIAL CONGREGATION MEETING

Sunday, October 1 following the 9:30 a.m. worship service, all members are asked to attend a special meeting to follow-up discussions at two previous congregation meetings regarding the city's offer and code violations. Please make every effort to be present at this important meeting. It has critical implications for our congregation's mission and ministry.

BLESSING OF THE ANIMALS

Please join Pastor Lutze and the preschool students on Wednesday, October 4 at 8:45 a.m. for a brief "Blessing of the Animals". Bring your pets in cages, on leashes or in a photo form.

WOMEN'S LOVE CIRCLE

We would like to invite anyone that might be interested to come and see what we do at Women's Love Circle. An important part of our session is our Bible Study. The first three lessons of this new season will be on The Apostles' Creed. Come and find out why this is part of our liturgy every Sunday. We meet the second Monday of each month (September through June) beginning October 9th at 9:30 a.m. since last month's meeting was cancelled due to the storm.

If you receive the Gather magazine at home, please bring September and October's.

Love Circle is one of the ways for you to be a part of Nativity's Family.

YOUTH KICK-OFF EVENT

Key leaders from Nativity and from Gardens Presbyterian, one of our ecumenical partners through ELCA, have been praying and sharing together to begin a shared youth ministry for both of our congregations.

As the storm blew us off course last month for a start date, let's try again on Sunday, October 15 at 4 p.m. here at Nativity. There will be games, food and other excitement especially focused on Middle and High School youth. It's not going to be something we're doing "for" our youth, but "with" our youth. As you hear and learn more, keep this new venture in your prayers.

SPECIAL Events

SANDWICH MAKING

KID BITS

Be a good sport

Playing games with your child gives you a chance to demonstrate good sportsmanship. Remind everyone to stick to the rules and play nicely. End games on a positive note whether you win or lose. For instance, say, "Good game. Thanks for playing," and encourage your little one to do the same.

Safety smarts

In stores, teach your youngster to spot employees with uniforms and badges, and explain that he should approach them if he gets lost. Also, help him memorize your phone number. Write each digit on a separate index card, and let him practice putting them in order.

My math "collection"

Organizing and playing with a collection of small objects is a fun way to work on early math skills. Suggest that your child gather up stickers, toy cars, or bouncy balls. Then, let her use an egg carton, a muffin tin, or an ice cube tray to sort and count her treasures.

Worth quoting

"The teacher is one who makes two ideas grow where only one grew before." Elbert Hubbard

Just for fun

Q: Why did the turkey cross the road?

A: Because it was the chicken's day off!

Exploring feelings

Developing empathy starts with your child's being able to recognize and understand how others are feeling — a tall order for someone who's just beginning to grasp his own emotions. Use these activities to build empathy.

Sing a silly song

This twist on "If You're Happy and You Know It" helps your youngster name feelings. Replace happy with a different emotion (excited, sad) and the action ("clap your hands," "stomp your feet") with "make a face." Both of you should make a face that matches the feeling. For "If you're surprised and you know it," you could open your eyes and mouths wide. Then, pick another emotion, and sing again.

Act it out

Enjoy this game to show your little one that people don't always feel the same way. Take turns naming something (spiders, brussels sprouts, haircuts), and have everyone act out how they feel about it. One person may act scared of spiders, for example, while another might show curiosity. Try to guess each other's emotions.

Use your imagination

Pretend play lets your child put himself in another person's shoes. While playing with dolls or stuffed animals, you could say, "The parrot feels mad that the bunny knocked over his blocks." Your youngster might add, "The bunny feels sorry, and he's going to rebuild the tower."♥

Let's go to the library

Show your youngster that the library is a wonderful place to read and have fun by making regular trips there. Here are tips:

- Let your child sign up for her own library card. It's free, and she will feel grown up when she uses her card to check out books.
- Browse the library's calendar to find events she would like, such as craft workshops, story times, and puppet shows.
- Have your youngster invite a friend along. A library playdate encourages children to enjoy books together.
- Hold a "treasure hunt." Take turns picking things to find, perhaps a magazine with "kids" in the title or a biography of a scientist. Your child will get to know the library's different sections.♥

THANK You

This past month we want to say a BIG THANK YOU to all that helped to put up and take down shutters here at Nativity because of hurricane threat. Thank you Tom Kuhn, Don Laven, Jim and Carolyne New, Stuart McClellan and granddaughter Brooke McGuire, Earl and Sue Osborne, Sharon Speckman and her brother Tom from NY, Chad Smith, Ralph and Teri Henning (yes, they came from Georgia to help), Ernadel Sioson for sending Brian and Jason, Tavis Smith, Dylan Rogers, Dylan and Caitlin Morrissey, David Johnson, Pia Heiser, Paul and Jacob Heiser and friend Trey, Lois Erickson and Kari Donnelly.

Thank you to property workday volunteers that came on Saturday, September 16 to clean up after Hurricane Irma. Those workers were Jim and Carolyne New, Denise and Caleb Ellis, John Johnsen, Hedy Rossmeissl, Dylan Morrissey, David, Becky and Sarah Willoughby, Kathy Brockelbank, Debra Flynn and Tom Kuhn.

Thank you also to Tom Kuhn, Stuart McClellan and Dylan Rogers for repairing a door that swelled, resetting the timers on lights and sprinkler systems and replacing batteries in sink faucets. You all are fantastic! We couldn't do it without you!

LOSS IN THE CHURCH FAMILY

Maria Raffa passed away September 17 at the age of 95. She had been living with her son since May as she was waiting for her new assisted living apartment to open.

Her service will be held on Friday, October 27, 11:00 a.m. at Faith Lutheran Church, 555 US Highway 1 in North Palm Beach.

STORIES OF FAITH IN ACTION

Stories of Faith in Action is a free, annual publication highlighting how God is changing lives through the ministries funded by congregations' offering of Mission Support, which is shared with your synod and the ELCA churchwide organization. Together, we serve God's people across the United States and around the world through our 9,300 congregations 65 synods and one churchwide organization. Visit ELCA.org/SOFIA to order your free copy.

Learning on your feet

Some days it may seem like your little one came with a built-in case of the wiggles. The upside? Young children often learn best when they are moving around. Try these active skill-building ideas.

Letters and numbers. Ask your youngster to use chalk to draw the alphabet in a long, winding path on the driveway or sidewalk. Have her hop to each letter, naming it as she lands. Next, she can make another path, this time writing numbers (1-10 or 1-20) to count as she jumps.

Colors and shapes. Combine actions with colors or shapes for your child to find in your house or yard. You could ask her to jump to something green (a bush) or tiptoe to something square (a table). Now she gets to tell you what to look for and how to move to it. Tip: Once she has mastered this, give her two-step and then three-step instructions ("Gallop to something blue, and march to something round").♥

ACTIVITY CORNER

Daytime, nighttime

What does daytime look and sound like? How about nighttime? Invite your child to explore differences between day and night with this project.

Help your youngster draw a Venn diagram—two giant circles that overlap in the middle. He should label one circle with a sun and the other with a moon.

In the morning, snuggle together near a window or on a porch to observe sights and listen to sounds. In his "sun" circle, have him draw pictures of what he sees (shadows) and hears (the "peep-peep" of birds). Do the same thing at night. In his "moon" circle, he could draw bright streetlights or an owl hooting in a tree.

In the space shared by both circles, encourage him to draw what he observed both times (rain falling, trees rustling in the wind).♥

Q & A

How to tame interruptions

Q: My son often interrupts when I'm talking to someone. It makes having a conversation challenging. What can I do?

A: Youngsters always seem to be bursting to tell you something the moment you start talking to anyone else. It is possible to limit the interruptions, though.

Show your son a polite, quiet way to get your attention. Maybe he could put his hand on your arm or hold your pinky finger. Then, use another signal to let him know you'll give him a turn to talk soon. You might pat his hand or nod. When you reach a stopping point in your conversation or hang up the phone, give your child your full attention while he talks.

Waiting politely takes practice, and your son may need a few reminders. But once he knows how to get your attention, he'll be less likely to interrupt.♥

PARENT TO PARENT

Make the most of TV

One day while my daughter Rachel was watching TV, she accidentally turned on the closed-captioning. I offered to turn it off, but she said she liked seeing the words. I realized this was an opportunity to turn TV time into learning time.

Rachel enjoyed telling me which words she recognized, and I pointed out new ones for her to learn. When the commercials came on, we talked about the show.

I suggested that we each try to predict what would happen next and tell what clues we used from the program. We enjoyed seeing how close our predictions came—and making new ones.

I know it's important to limit Rachel's screen time, but I'm happy to make the time she does spend watching TV a little more educational.♥

THIS MONTH'S THEME

Weather & Changing Seasons is this month's theme at Nativity Preschool. Each season brings big changes to weather and the surroundings your child sees. This month your child will learn about weather, storms and the signs of changing seasons. Your child will create a weather wheel, gather nature items for a hibernating bear, make a thunder shaker, and explore the effects of wind and water. Help your child be a weather watcher every day and explore the wonders of nature.

Keep track of the weather and temperature near your home. Make a rain gauge together (or put an empty bucket outside) and record how much rain falls this month. Make a family emergency plan for any extreme weather that might occur where you live.

SCARY WEATHER

Talk with your child about what types of weather scare them. Share your own fears and discuss other things that might scare your child. Sing the song below to the tune of "Mary Had a Little Lamb" and end with a hug.

SUNNY AND SAD DAYS

A child's mood can change just like the weather. One minute it's sunny and the next minute there's a storm. No matter what emotional weather your child experiences, find ways to affirm your love for him. This will increase your child's sense of trust and safety. Once your child feels safe, you can help him learn strategies for managing his emotions.

Follow these suggestions to monitor your child's weather:

- Learn to recognize your child's distress signals. Each child gives off a unique set of non-verbal and verbal cues to alert others of pending frustration, stress or fear. When you respond to signals immediately, you acknowledge the child's feelings and show you are there for him.

- Affirm your child's need for your attention. Respond to your child's efforts to talk or share his opinions. Even if it's out of context, or at an inconvenient time, let your child know you hear him and want to know more. Give a specific time when you will listen more fully, if needed.

- In new experiences, offer support and encouragement throughout the process. If you think it may frustrate your child, stay positive and tell him you are there if it gets too hard.

- Keep it short. Share knowledge you have on information or subjects that interest your child, but don't go overboard. Remember your 3 to 4-year-old child has an attention span ranging from 7-10 minutes on a single task.

- Give lots of hugs. Give non-verbal support through hugs, hand gestures and facial expressions. Your child can feel your presence and support from just a look.

When your child feels safe knowing he has your unconditional love, his ability to learn will significantly increase. A child's physical and emotional well-being are closely linked to his ability to effectively deal with his own emotions. Create a caring climate to help your child feel secure and loved.

GATHERING TABLE

Each day we will do many exciting hands-on activities with your children. Most of the supplies we will need are included in the lesson bags inside your Mother Goose Time Curriculum Kits.
