WORDS FROM

Pastor Steve

Mid-January I drove to Tallahassee to join the Just Love Ministry for Advocacy Days. It is an annual event that brings faith communities to Tallahassee during the January legislative session to learn about current bills, and advocate for policies that address hunger relief, housing, and human dignity, focusing on systemic change through training, legislative meetings, and public witness, while emphasizing the gospel value of caring for the vulnerable. The event is hosted by the Florida Council of Churches at the Florida People's Advocacy Center in Tallahassee. The 2026 theme was Sowing the Harvest! which explores how the ministries we do in our communities translate into good public policy. Good public policy is rooted in decisions that ultimately promote the care, and provision of needs of God's people, and creation.

I attended Advocacy Days to satisfy continuing education requirements, but also to satisfy a curiosity about the political system and culture that we live in. It has been a long time since I sat in middle school social studies, or watched School House Rock's How a Bill Becomes a Law during Saturday morning cartoons!

Clergy and Laity, representing Lutherans, Methodists, and Episcopalians were among the attendees. On day one, we listened to experts and lobbyists speak on a number of bills. Each listening session was followed by a Q&A. The organizations represented were, The Southern Poverty Law Center, The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Rethink Energy Florida, The American Civil Liberties Union, The American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, Floridians for Alternatives to the Death Penalty, and others. That night we were encouraged to take what we had learned that day, converse with one another, and run it through the Gospel of Jesus, and prayer. The next day we headed over to the capital to meet with our legislators and/or attend committee meetings.

On that very brisk Tallahassee morning, I attended the State Affairs Committee meeting that was debating HJR-203. HJR-203 is a bill that aims at phasing out non-school property taxes on homesteaded properties over ten years. Over the course of an hour, politicians openly debated about the pros and cons of eliminating property taxes. That was followed by statements by the gallery of attendees. The last half hour citizens, comprised of lobbyists, groups with special interest (twenty fire chiefs), individuals and the faith communities shared their opinion on how the elimination of non-school property taxes will impact Floridians lives. It was good to see and hear people like you and I, being seen and heard by the representatives.

Afterwards I went to my state representative and senator's offices to introduce myself as being one of their constituents. Neither were in the office. Both were in session. However, I did get to thank each office front desk staffers for the bills they are engage in that address basic human needs such as food, water, and housing, as well as those bills that do not assure equitable access to those necessities. I shared the mission of Nativity's Act Love Walk Ministry, and how we are doing what we can, but truly appreciate legislation that educates, equips, and empowers those who need a helping hand.

I approached Advocacy Days as a means of living into my baptism. The baptismal rite in our pew hymnal reads, "proclaim Christ through word and deed, care for others and the world God made, and work for justice and peace." (ELW p.228). Advocacy Days offered a concrete way to engage the kingdom of God's spiritual promises in the earthly kingdom. It brought what is confessed on Sunday into something meant to be practiced in public, faithful engagement with the realities shaping our neighbors' lives. By listening to stories, learning about policies, and listening to elected officials, I experienced advocacy as an act of discipleship—one that holds love of neighbor and responsibility for the common good together. In this way, advocacy becomes prayerful action, rooted not in partisanship, but in baptismal identity and trust in God's ongoing work of renewal.

Remember your baptism Good People,
Pastor Steve

This month, toddlers will discover the wonderful world of Baby Animals! Together we'll explore how animal families care for, protect and nurture their little ones, just like human families do. Through stories, songs and playful discoveries, children will learn that every baby grows best with love, cuddles and care. At home, you can extend this learning by observing animals in books or nature, talking about family routines and celebrating the special ways you care for each other every day.

Waiting for Babies: Look at pictures of animal eggs or nests together and talk about how animals (and people!) care for their babies.

Carrying Babies: Play pretend by wrapping a stuffed animal in a blanket or scarf, showing how parents carry babies close to keep them safe and loved.

Keeping Babies Safe: Build a cozy "home" with pillows or blankets and talk about how families keep each other protected and cared for.

Growing Babies: Look at baby and grown-up animal pictures or your child's baby photos to notice how everyone grows and learns new things over time.

With wiggles and giggles and stories anew, we'll grow and explore like baby animals do!

TOGETHER TIME

Tea Party Book

WHAT?	HOW?	WHY?
In the story of the week, your child learned that taking turns helps everyone enjoy time together.	Have a family tea party where your child pours "tea" and shares a book with each stuffed animal, practicing kindness and turn-taking together.	Family playtime is a fun way to help children learn how sharing and fairness make everyone feel included and loved.

Oval Walk

WHAT?	HOW?	WHY?
In the story of the week, your child learned that being kind and making room for everyone helps friends and families play happily together.	Make a pretend "mud puddle" with masking tape. Lie or sit in it together and invite stuffed animals to join so everyone has space to play.	Family play like this helps children understand how kindness and inclusion make friendships happy and strong.

Baby Animals

WHAT?	HOW?	WHY?
This week, your child learned how baby animals grow and change, just like children do as they get older.	Look at your child's baby pictures together, share memories from those times and invite them to talk about what they notice.	Reflecting on family memories helps children feel loved and connected, building confidence to grow and learn.

Time to Rhyme

WHAT?	HOW?	WHY?
In this week's story, your child learned about rhyming words and discovered how fun it is to play with sounds in language.	While driving or walking together, choose a word you see, like "tree," and take turns making up silly rhymes with it.	Playing with rhyming words helps children hear and recognize sound patterns, building early language and reading skills.

THIS MONTH'S THEME Baby Animals

This month, your child will learn all about baby animals. They will be introduced to many different kinds of babies and learn how their parents care for them. They will explore how babies are carried, protected and learn as they grow up. This month is a great opportunity to look back at baby pictures and share memories.

Look for the daily notes about your child's art projects!

Today I created a baby tortoise.

Tortoises have heavy shells that they carry on their backs. I made my own baby tortoise using a souffle cup and other art materials. I have to be careful with my tortoise and make sure I take good care of it!

ASK ME: How did you make your baby tortoise? You take care of it!

Today I made a kitten mask.

A baby cat is called a kitten. I created my own mask and decided if it was a cat or a kitten. Cats love playing with yarn and I used yarn to tie my mask. It's fun to pretend to be a playful animal.

ASK ME: How did you decorate your mask? What did you know about cats?

Build language and literacy around the home!

Literacy is a part of everyday life. We are surrounded by written words when we drive, cook, eat and shop. Point out the print you see in your everyday experiences to your child. This interaction is the foundation of literacy. Here are a few ideas to build your child's literacy in playful and easy ways:

- Point out examples of print in and out of the home. Some examples include street signs, the calendar, food packages, mail, recipes or directions.
- Play the "I Spy" game with letters or sight words. Encourage your child to find a specific letter or word in the environment.
- Let your child choose between options as you point to the printed names. For example, ask your child which cereal they want to eat as you point to the printed name on each box.
- Encourage your child to retell their favorite stories.
- When your child "writes," ask them to "read" what it says. There is no wrong way to write.
- Involve your child in tasks, such as grocery lists, recipes or looking up information.
- Mimic life skills with your child. Set up a pretend play area that follows the interests of your child (e.g. dentist, doctor, car repair, office) and think about the books, reading, writing and tools involved in this job.
- Create a language-rich world for your child! Talk together throughout the day, read books and encourage drawing or writing anywhere: in the dirt, on paper or even in the air with a finger.

Hop Like a Bunny

(Sing to the tune of "Row Your Boat.")

Think of different animals, then change the words and move like that animal.

Hop, hop, hop like a bunny,
Make a bunny face.

Hop to the left, and hop to the right.
Then hop and march in place.

Jump, jump, jump like a kangaroo...
Swim, swim, swim little seahorse...

Baby Care

Take a walk around the neighborhood and pay special attention to any babies or pets you see. Ask what kind of care the baby or pet needs. Invite your child to think of a way they might be able to help the neighborhood pets and animals.
