Overland Transfer to Kyoto

The drive will take approximately 1.5 hours

Kyoto, steeped in traditions and beauty, has remained relatively unchanged for many centuries. Kyoto was Japan's capital for over 1,000 years and during that time became a repository of much of the best Japanese art, culture, religion and thought. Kyoto's historic buildings and sites span centuries. Kyoto still charms visitors with its original wooden houses, ancient temples, and geishas hurrying on their way.

Arashiyama District

Kyoto, Japan

Enjoy a visit to the Arashiyama District, a tranquil enclave located on the outskirts of Kyoto that has attracted visitors since the Heian Period. Here you will find charming old streets lined with Meiji-period buildings and townhouses that transport travelers to a bygone era.

Arashiyama Bamboo Groves

Kyoto, Japan

Enjoy a stroll through the infamous Arashiyama Bamboo Groves, one of the most legendary icons of Kyoto.

Pass through towering stalks reaching for the sky, their emerald whispers carried on a gentle breeze. Feel the sunlight dappling through the dense canopy, creating a mesmerizing interplay of light and shadow.

Kinkakuji Temple / The Golden Pavilion

Kyoto, Japan

Marvel at the gilded brilliance of Kinkakuji, the Golden Pavilion, named for the beautiful gold leaf that adorns it.

The garden here is as spectacular as the architecture and setting. Mount Kinugasa serves as a backdrop. The temple was originally built as a villa by the Shogun Yoshimitsu Ashikaga in 1397, but it was turned into a Buddhist temple after his death. Though destroyed by a number of fires, the temple was reconstructed again and again.

The latest disaster occurred in 1950, when an apprentice monk set fire to the temple to show his dissatisfaction with society. In 1987 the pavilion walls were completely renovated using 200,000 pieces of gold foil.

The surrounding landscape represents a classic example of a 14th-century stroll garden. Rocks symbolizing mountains and oceans are arranged in and around the pond, located in the center.

Kiyomizu-dera, full name Otowa-san Kiyomizu-dera is an independent Buddhist temple in eastern Kyoto. The temple is part of the Historic Monuments of Ancient Kyoto (Kyoto, Uji and Otsu Cities) UNESCO World Heritage site. Not one nail is used in the whole temple. The temple is part of the 33-temple route of the Chūgoku 33 Kannon Pilgrimage through western Japan, which is still traced by worshippers today.

Kiyomizu-dera was founded in the early Heian period. The temple dates back to 798, and its present buildings were constructed in 1633. It takes its name from the waterfall within the complex, which runs off the nearby hills. Kiyomizu means clear water, or pure water.

Notes

Nara, tucked away amidst the rolling hills and verdant landscapes south of Kyoto, is more than just a city; it's a captivating tapestry woven from history, serenity, and the gentle presence of sika deer. Stepping into Nara is like stepping back in time, where ancient temples hold whispered stories and temples share space with mischievous deer roaming freely.

Todaiji Temple

Nara, Japan

Visit Todaiji Temple, a Buddhist temple complex, home to the world's largest bronze statue of the Buddha Vairocana. Constructed in 752, the main hall of Todaiji Temple is the largest wooden building in the world, despite being only two thirds the size of the original temple hall's size. Doe-eyed Sika Deer, regarded as messengers of the gods in the Shinto religion, freely roam the grounds surrounding the temple.

Nara Park

Nara, Japan

Nara Park is a large central park playing host to Todaiji Temple, Kasuga Shrine, Kofukuji and the Nara National Museum. The nearly 1,200 deer who call the park home have been designated a natural treasure and are something of a symbol for the city. Throughout the park you will find deer crackers for sale; some of the resident deer have learned how to bow in order to ask to be fed by visitors.

Enjoy Lunch at a Local Restaurant

The cost of lunch is payable directly to the restaurant.

Naramachi Old Town

Kyoto, Japan

While in Nara, enjoy a visit to Naramachi, the former merchant district of Nara.

Many of Naramachi's buildings in the Edo Period and beyond were machiya - long, narrow "townhouses" that served both as shops and as the living quarters of the local merchants. Today, a handful of machiya have been preserved as museums.

In the heart of Naramachi is Gangoji Temple, Japan's oldest Buddhist temple, first built in Asuka but later relocated to Naramachi around 718 AD.
