

Sunday, February 8, 2026

🇺🇸 This evening, something truly special unfolded: The All-American Halftime Show, presented by Turning Point USA, took the stage—not in a stadium, but in hearts across the country. In a world that often feels divided, this event became a powerful reminder that we can still come together around the things that truly matter: faith, family, and freedom.

Picture it: families gathered around screens, friends sharing laughs and stories, generations united in song. Artists like Kid Rock brought raw energy and unapologetic patriotism, Brantley Gilbert poured out heartfelt anthems of resilience, Lee Brice reminded us of love's quiet strength, and Gabby Barrett lifted voices in celebration of hope and grace. Every note, every lyric, carried a message of pride in who we are as Americans—people who believe in hard work, in standing tall for what's right, and in holding close the values that built this nation.

This wasn't just a performance; it was a turning point. A bold stand to create space for entertainment that uplifts rather than divides, that honors tradition rather than mocks it, and that invites everyone to feel seen, valued, and inspired. In choosing to celebrate what unites us, the show sparked a quiet revolution: proof that when we root ourselves in goodness, courage, and love for our country, we rediscover our shared strength.

To everyone who tuned in, who sang along, who felt a renewed sense of possibility—that moment belonged to you. It showed us that even in challenging times, we have the power to choose joy, to choose unity, to choose the best of who we can be. Here's to more nights like this: where music heals, where pride swells, and where the American spirit shines brighter than ever.

This Is Your Turning Point. Keep believing. Keep standing. The best is still ahead.

Charlotte Shaffer, ACRC Chair

