APRIL PROGRAM

"WHAT'S THE BUZZ ABOUT BEES"

Hunt Garden Club Bee Committee

The members of the Hunt Garden Club Bee Project will be presenting the program that is available to local schools and clubs. This program is a basic introduction to the importance of bees in our ecosystem. We cover the parts of a bee and their life cycle. We talk about different jobs that bees have within the hive.

Our program covers beekeepers and the equipment they use in working with their hives. Finally, we discuss the importance of pollinators in our world and the part that bees play. Our mobile observation hive will be on display.

A Note from the President

Gardening is the art that uses flowers and plants as paint, and the soil and sky as canvas Elizabeth Murray

There are few things that make me happier than wandering around a nursery and looking for "just the right thing" to fill that bare spot in my yard. I know that by August I will be tired of seeing brown and dried up grass, but the promise of new life and growth in the spring makes me smile and brings joy to my heart. I think the fresh green when trees are budding out is one of my favorite colors.

Karen Taylor and I attended the Texas Garden Club's state convention last week and it was great to hear what other clubs are doing in Texas as well as nationwide. We are part of a much larger sisterhood (although there are male club members) and we should be proud of all of all the great work our National Garden Club is doing.

Our newsletter this month outlines the many things our club does that bring beauty and new life to this area. Please be sure to check out what our committees are doing and make sure you are plugged into one or several of them.

Happy planting and happy spring!

Cindy

ADOPT A HIGHWAY

(Chris Ann Brown and Penny Deupree)

Our latest clean-up was on Saturday, March 24, 2025. 11 volunteers picked up 5 large sacks of trash along Highway 39, the designated route for Hunt Garden Club. The volunteers were Pat and Gay Chaudoir, Diane and Dean DeKerlegand, Ruth and Ted Johnson, Weezy Johnson, Beth Gaddie, Kyra Bowman, Chris Ann and Bill Brown. The unusual items were a pair of women's underwear, an empty Kaluha bottle, and an embedded piece of sheet rock that Beth Gaddie pried off the road surface.

What's Happening in Hunt Garden Club?

POST OFFICE GARDEN

(Kyra Bowman)

The PO garden committee successfully completed their spring work day. The team started on Thursday, March 20 by delivering all needed materials to the PO. The mulch, rocks, pots and plants were brought in by Laura Williams and Kyra Bowman with the heavy lifting done by Laura's husband, Randy. Friday morning another group arrived to pull weeds, add the rocks where needed, spread mulch, pot the abelias and generally tidy the area. Thanks to Pam Hardin, Pam Curtis, Laura Williams, Gay Chaudoir and Carol Gannaway for all their help. The garden looks lovely!

PRESIDENT'S GARDEN

(Bernadell Larson)

A Mexican Grass Tree has been planted in the garden where we had a blank spot. Stop by and check it out. Our Texas Redbud tree has struggled over the last few years and continues to struggle, but it did have some redbuds! We hope that it will survive another year or two.

BEEHIVE PROJECT

(Beth Gaddie)

The Bee Committee is excited to be presenting the program at the April Garden Club meeting. You will get all of the Bzzzz about our bees. We will be installing a new hive at the end of April and will be presenting our program at the Hunt School Science Alive Day in May

SOCIAL MEDIA

WILDSCAPE (Carla Stang)

The Wildscape team spent a few days pruning the hardy native plants in front of the HISD. Sadly, because of the lack of rain, there were only a couple of plants blooming. There were very few Blue Bonnets blooming and they were either in a crack in the pavement or butting up against a curb. And a lesser-known yellow native bloomer is the Huisache Daisy, that also apparently likes to be near cement, as seen in the photo. Most natives don't like to be pampered and these two living examples. Fortunately, most of us benefited from substantial rainfall this weekend. I'm sure the Wildscape will be showing us some renewal after that.

We're welcoming two new members to the team: Ginger Cave (and she even initiated her husband, Mike, on one of the workdays) and Joanne Williams. We were blessed on our Friday workday that a Road and Bridges crew was driving by and saw that we were loading the pickup truck w/the pruning debris. They were doing tree trimming work adjacent to the school and offered to mulch and remove our debris from that day. Perfect timing and a generous Hill Country friendly offer.

DISCOVERY GARDEN

(Megan Stolley, Haley Lehrmann)

The garden has come alive in the past month! The kids learned about photosynthesis and how the new compost equipment operates. We're looking forward to harvesting next month. Especially all the cabbage and cauliflower which have been thriving!
