All That Counts

I made a great save.
I did my best old-man hobbling sprint backwards, caught up with the ball near the baseline just before it hit the ground, got a good wrist snap and backhanded it down the line.

I didn't actually see it skim the net or land on the line,
I had stubbed my toe and was stumbling forwards, flailing my arms.
This went on for three or four steps before sprawling face forwards.
I skinned my chin,
the knuckles on my paddle hand,
my left elbow, tore a hole in the right knee of my warm ups,
a bit of blood was coming through.

We won the point and the match.
I didn't break any bones.
As they say, that's all that counts.
