Overview

Doing Business As: Government of The United States

Company Description: The US Government is headed by the President, who along with the Vice President is elected for a four-year term. Presidential elections have been held in an unbroken sequence dating back to 1788. The executive office of the government is known as the White House, situated in the heart of the nation's capital. The president's cabinet of top officials is chosen by the President, conditional upon the US Senate's approval. Besides the various departments led by secretaries, other agencies such as the Office of Management and Budget, the Central Intelligence Agency, and the Council of Economic Advisers report to the President. In case of the President's death or temporary incapacitation, or resignation, the Vice President succeeds to the office.
