

Eventide

February 18, 2011

Now I lay me down to sleep	A E A A
May the good Lord my soul keep	E D A A
And if I should die before I wake	E D A Bm
May the good Lord my soul take	A D E E
As I lay me down to sleep	A E A A

When the daylight comes again
And the robin greets the dawn
How we cheer the sight of morning light
And the shades of slumber gone
When the daylight comes again

In the fullness of our days
In the brightness and the haze
How we hail the tender of the vine
And his rich bounty praise
In the fullness of our days

When the evening shadows fall
And we hear the nighthawk call
How we peaceful go where rivers flow
To gather one and all
When the evening shadows fall

Repeat Verse 1
