

	<h1>The Art of Possibility</h1> Book by Rosamund Stone Zander and Benjamin Zander	Created in Canva by Jenna Minieri
		Theme	Notes
1		It's All Invented	What assumption am I making, That I'm not aware I'm making, That gives me what I see? What might I now invent, That I haven't yet invented, That would give me other choices?
2		Stepping into a Universe of Possibility	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> How are my thoughts and actions, in this moment, a reflection of the measurement world? How are my thoughts and actions, in this new moment, a reflection of the measurement world?
3		Giving an A	The only grace you can have is the grace you can imagine. An A radiates possibility through a family, a workplace, and a community.
4		Being a Contribution	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Declare yourself to be a contribution. Throw yourself into life as someone who makes a difference, accepting that you may not understand how or why.
5		Leading from Any Chair	The activity of leadership is not limited to conductors, presidents, and CEOs.
6		Rule Number 6	Lighten up over our childish demands and entitlements.

7		The Way Things Are	Distinguish between our assumptions, our feelings, and the facts.
8		Giving Way to Passion	Where are you holding back, and let go. Participate wholly
9		Lighting a Spark	Enrollment is the art and practice of generating a spark of possibility for others to share.
10		Being the Board	"I am the framework for everything that happens in my life" "Well, how did this get on the board that I am ?" or "Now how is it that I have become a context for that to occur?"
11		Creating Frameworks for Possibility	Restructure meaning, create visions, and establish environments where possibility is spoken – overcoming the pull of the downward spiral.
12		Telling the WE Story	The WE appears when, for the moment, we set aside the story of fear, competition and struggle, and tell its story.