

My Good School

Learning Forward Annual Conference 2019, St Louis
Session 3233: My Good School Program: Experiential Learning for ALL
11th December 8.45 am to 10.45 am

The Transformational Framework – Schools can change

The Education System – The challenges at hand for both government and private schools

How do we set this right?

 Empower students

 Alter the environment

 Involve all stakeholders

 Focus on personal & social development

We have a solution at hand....

The My Good School program aims at altering the environment by empowering students and focussing on personal and social development with the help of different stakeholders, namely, teachers, management and the community at large

Our philosophy of quality in education is about offering an environment where experiential learning is made possible through activities beyond just study, brings to life learning that would otherwise be theoretical and uncoordinated.

We have demonstrated learning can be easily personalised and assessment must be a fun process to leave a life long impact.

The logo speaks OUR philosophy

The electric cyan for Sport.

Without Cyan we cannot make any colour, this portrays the need for a "basic" understanding of the needs of the young people.

The serene green for Skill.

The word green is closely related to the Old English verb growan, "to grow". Individuals must develop skills for life.

The collaborative magenta for Service

Is used to symbolize "anti-racism", young people bring the world together and do not like being differentiated by colour, caste, creed... other divisive ways. Communities must be built.

The prestigious blue for Study.

All pervading and dominant colour, enhances vision, we need to think "beyond the blue". Intellectual development is a necessity.

What it means for a student?

Global Implication

The world today is focusing on 'social and emotional learning' (SEL), the MGS helps

- Builds a greater engagement between stakeholders and this build empathy, trust
- Provides space for mentorship to the teachers and community members
- Helps young people with skills to prepare them for the world, this includes vocational and social skills

College Readiness

Similar to the Duke of Edinburgh's Award, Outward Bound, Scouts & Guides and similar programs do for schools do for mainstream and residential school with a focus on Middle and Secondary Schools, the MGS works with a whole school approach for learning and reflection. We have used the experience of extra-curricular and sport activity and provided a structure to simply monitor the outcome.

Appreciation for one another

The four sections offer the opportunity to offer a learning experience to all, this makes way for involving the students and the community to not only discover new talent but also help a young person work to exploring possibilities for careers post school

Teacher and adults are intrinsically involved

The 'My Good School' program not only encourages students to focus on experiential learning but also focuses on helping its teachers, institution management the community at large

“MGS connect the passionate teachers, management, community and the students with common areas of interest in hobbies and activities beyond the classroom thus working to help each excel and work to better learning outcomes.”

The My Good School Program has global implications

- As the world today is focusing on ‘social and emotional learning’ (SEL), the MGS helps build a greater engagement between stakeholders and this build empathy, trust and provides space for mentorship to the teachers and community members.
- The MGS helps young people with skills to prepare them for the world, this includes vocational and social skills.
