

My Good School

Record Book

My Good School helps young people follow their passion in Service, Skill, Sport and Study. The four disciplines form the key elements for delivering quality in education. The school may focus on one as their speciality, a good school must provide an environment conducive to deliver a balance of all the four key elements.

My Good School

Our educational philosophy (4S)

My Good School works for the personal and social development of an individual by offering an environment where experiential learning is made possible through activities beyond just study; this brings to life learning that would otherwise be theoretical and uncoordinated.

Education = Service + Skill + Sport + Study (4S)

The logo on the cover, depicts how the school works to deliver quality in education, by providing equal opportunity to all the students to excel in what they find most interesting.

The collaborative magenta for Service

Is used to symbolize "anti-racism", young people bring the world together and do not like being differentiated by colour, caste, creed... other divisive ways. Communities must be built.

The serene green for Skill

The word green is closely related to the Old English verb growan, "to grow". Individuals must develop skills for life.

The electric cyan for Sport

Without Cyan we cannot make any colour, this portrays the need for a "basic" understanding of the needs of the young people.

The prestigious blue for Study

All pervading and dominant colour, enhances vision, we need to think "beyond the blue". Intellectual development is a necessity.

Education should help each individual attain a perfect score of 10/10. What matters is the emphasis we as individuals give to each of the four S's. For some 'Study' could be full 10, for some 'Sport' could be 10, yet the most complete individuals will value each of the four S's and find themselves.

My Good School works for the personal and social development of an individual by offering an environment where:

- ♦ Experiential learning is made possible through activities beyond just study, this brings to life learning which would otherwise be theoretical and uncoordinated.
- ♦ By Encouraging students to become involved in activities in the community outside the confines of the school curriculum will help develop their confidence, knowledge and networks.
- ♦ With teachers' encouraging young people, they can benefit fully from what both the school and outside interests can offer, this can be a key factor in their progressing successfully through adolescence into a fulfilling and rewarding adult life.

The Record Book is a record of the participation of the student, for one year at school. In the 'My Achievement' pages the student will showcase the key learning or the work done. At the end of the year the Class Teacher will write a brief report and the Parents will give their comment.
