ABOUT ME

I specialize in coaching startup leaders operating in high-stakes transitions—founders, executives, and emerging leaders suddenly responsible for solving complex problems, leading teams, and making critical decisions.

Bringing 20+ years of experience across leadership, project management, and product development, I blend business acumen with emotional intelligence to help my clients lead with clarity, execute with confidence, and navigate challenges with emotional resilience.

My coaching philosophy centers on personal agency, practical action, and relational depth. I believe every leader deserves a steady hand in their corner—someone who listens with compassion, reflects with honesty, and supports them in defining and pursuing their own vision of success.
