SECTION A: READING SKILLS (20marks)

1. Read the following passage.

(10 M)

Tea time- Pop the Kettle On

1.) 21 May is International Tea Day. Actually, a dozen days throughout the year celebrate tea in its many forms and by different cultures—Japan recognises National Matcha Day on 6 February, while 21 September is National Chai Day in India. At a daily average of three cups, Indians collectively drink a whopping 1.08 billion servings of tea every day. Tea is second to water as the most popular beverage in the world. It was discovered by accident nearly 5,000 years ago, according to legend. As the story goes, Chinese Emperor Shen Nong sipped it first in 2737 BC, after leaves from a nearby tree above him blew into his pot of boiled water. While tea was popular in China, Brits brewed theirs often. But another country beats them all: Turkey drinks the most tea per capita, followed by Ireland and then the United Kingdom.

2.) TEA'S 3,000-plus varieties boil down to a handful of main categories: black, green, yellow, white, purple, oolong and pu-erh. But they all come from the same plant, Camellia sinensis, a tropical evergreen shrub native to central Southeast Asia.

3) . Green tea, like Japanese sencha, have low levels of caffeine, while black teas, like orange pekoe, pack more of a punch. Perhaps you've heard that tea has more caffeine than coffee? It's technically true: By weight, dry tea leaves contain more caffeine than coffee beans do. But once the beverages are brewed, even black tea has only about half the jolt of java.

4.) The first tea bags offered a game-changing way to brew a quick, no-mess, single-serving cup of tea, but for all its brilliance, the invention is believed to have come about by accident. The most common origin story claims that in 1908, a New York tea importer sent tea samples in silk bags and told customers they should be steeped directly.

5.) One of the priciest teas in history was the original form of a variety called Da Hong Pao, picked from "mother bushes" planted high in China's Wuyi Mountains. Harvesting these prized bushes became illegal in 2007. But before then, Da Hong Pao would set you back about $2,400 (around 12 lakh) a cup.

6.) HERBAL TEAS are said to have multiple health benefits, many with antioxidant, digestive, and scientific uses. Peppermint and ginger can ease digestive distress. Hibiscus can help lower blood pressure. Chamomile and lavender can soothe stress and lead to better sleep. Herbs, are common in Sleepy time teas—which you should drink in the evening before bed for the best results.

2. Read the following passage.

(10M)

1.) Climate change refers to long-term changes in the Earth's weather patterns and average temperatures. It is primarily driven by human activities such as burning fossil fuels, deforestation, and industrial processes that release greenhouse gases like carbon dioxide (CO₂), methane (CH₄), and nitrous oxide (N₂O) into the atmosphere. These gases trap heat from the sun, causing global temperatures to rise—a phenomenon called the greenhouse effect.

2.) The consequences of climate change are widespread and severe. Rising global temperatures lead to the melting of polar ice caps and glaciers, causing sea levels to rise and threatening coastal areas with flooding. More frequent and intense extreme weather events like hurricanes, droughts, floods, heat waves, and wildfires pose risks to human health, agriculture, and natural ecosystems. Additionally, changing climate disrupts biodiversity and food production, and increases water scarcity in many regions.

3.) Efforts to combat climate change focus on reducing greenhouse gas emissions by transitioning to renewable energy sources, improving energy efficiency, protecting forests, and adopting sustainable agricultural practices. Global cooperation and policy action are essential to limit temperature rise and mitigate the adverse effects.

Causes of Climate Change	Effects of Climate Change
Burning fossil fuels (coal, oil, natural gas)	Rising global temperatures and heat waves
Deforestation and land-use changes	Melting ice caps and rising sea levels
Industrial emissions and waste	More frequent extreme weather events
Agriculture (methane from livestock)	Disruption of ecosystems and biodiversity
Increased greenhouse gases in the atmosphere	Food and water scarcity

5.) Addressing climate change urgently is vital to protect the planet's health, ecosystems, and future generations. Reducing emissions and adopting sustainable practices can help secure a livable environment worldwide.

Answer the following questions, based on the passage above:

- I. Which of the following does not explain the primary cause of current climate change? (1)

“E-Libraries: A Step into Future”

E-Libraries are digital platforms designed to provide access to a vast range of books, journals and study materials without the need for physical copies. Instead of visiting a traditional library, students and readers can log in online and explore millions of resources from anywhere. This innovation is revolutionizing the education sector by enhancing accessibility, reducing costs, and promoting eco-friendly learning. However, some argue that e-libraries pose more problems than solutions. The concerns are raised about screen fatigue, technical barriers and the potential neglect of physical books.

You may begin like this:

I believe e- libraries offer more solutions than problems / I believe e-libraries are more problematic than helpful.....
