[] Life and Death of the Luftwaffe Baumbach 1949 Nice copy, 224pp, hc, no dust jacket. Amazon review: This superb book is not only for the WW II historian interested in the Luftwaffe but has a superb final chapter which presents dire warnings and speculations which are either now fulfilled or are being completed as we now see happening in the world. The masterful presentations of the rise and fall of the German Luftwaffe are covered in great detail. The author does not shirk to express his true feelings and opinions about the wise decisions and foolish choices and follies committed by those in charge of the political and military branches of the Third Reich. His voice and presentation are truly refreshing. This is a must read book for anyone seeking the truth about air war and the painful aftermath. $12.50 B

[] Aviation in Canada: The CAE Story Milberry. Few comparable industry books ever have been done. One of Canada's widest-ranging aviation histories, a true delight! Founded in 1947, CAE begins with CF-100, Argus & CF-104 "flight sims", then tackles everything from consumer products to radar station contracts, overhauls C-119s, F-84s, Viscounts, and manufactures L-1011 & C-135 components. CAE profits in forestry, flops with bushplanes and some acquisitions, makes auto parts, and designs control systems for power stations & naval vessels. It designs the robotic hand controller for the Canadarm orbiting today on the ISS. This spectacular book brings you to the present with CAE owing the lion's share of the commercial flight sim market, while producing visual & motion systems, and running flight schools & sim centres worldwide. The CAE Story honours the company's great pioneers + its generations of employees. CAE's late CEO, the renowned Douglas Reekie, commented, "You deserve a great deal of credit for undertaking this task and for doing it so well. There should be a medal for your perseverance." Former Commander of Canada's air force, the late General W.K. Carr, DFC, noted in his famously no-nonsense way: "The book is fantastic"! [] Reach for the Sky Wonderful new book by Evelyn Wong. The story of how her father and uncle, Canada's famous Bobby and Tommy Wong, started into aviation by building a Pietenpol homebuilt while still in high school. Registered CF-BAA, the fellows flew it, then went on to their WWII careers in the BCATP, etc. Postwar, they found Central Airways which they build at Toronto Island Airport into one of Canada's top flying schools. The book finishes with the story of how CF-BAA has been re-discovered and is being restored around 80 years after "disappearing". Produced as a children's book, this also is also an important title for any adult collector of important Canadian aviation books. 42-pages, large format, hardcover, beautifully illustrated.
