

Who is Training Whom?

It's a humbling moment when you realize your pet has actually trained you to do something.

Who is in charge at your home? Does your pet respond to your voice or hand commands, or does he respond to outside triggers? Habits can be broken or modified.

We will help you identify the unknown signals you are communicating to your pet, and modify them to gain the more cooperative and loving companion that you both want!

Basic behaviors to more involved commands. We have done it all.

Loving companion or obedient working partner. The first step is just a paw print away. Call us!

History of TK9

I have had dogs all my life. I fell in love with them in high school, while working at the Peninsula SPCA cleaning kennels. I would pick special dogs and train them. I became an animal control officer helping all animals. When I turned 21, I joined the Newport News Police Department, and got the chance to work my way up to the K9 unit. What a dream come true! This is where I really started training and learning about dogs, and the first time I saw a dog and a person work as partners. Throughout the years, I trained family dogs for different people gaining even more experience. I took time away from law enforcement to develop a stronger training style. I transported and trained dogs for many years between VA and CA, working with the ATF and DEA in various venues. I trained dogs with Von Liche Kennels and later with Aegis World Wide Protection at the US Embassy in Kabul, Afghanistan. I assisted in setting up and running the K9 program there. The US State Department provided my orders as a K9 trainer. Additionally, I have trained with New Mexico Tech, American K9 Interdiction, and Ventosa Kennels.

I have been intensively training K9's since 1998, and trained several police K9s for patrol, narcotics, and explosives. The most rewarding however, is the integration and structure I provide households with their own dogs. I have three fur babies at home, and recognize the varying needs of basic training for the home environment.

New Member of the Family?

We work with local rescue, vet clinics and humane shelters to help acclimate the fur babies so that they show their best behavior for adoption.

We offer 10% off of your first training visit when you adopt a dog into your home from one of these rescues. We will continue working with your newest family member to get the good manners everyone wants.

There is no better pet than one rescued from a prior bad experience, but there will be fears, and interaction missteps until you establish the rules of your home.
