Templating

Once you've accepted our quote, we'll send our team to your site to take precise measurements to ensure your countertop fits your space perfectly.

Our templaters are highly trained professionals who can explain the templating process and answer any questions you may have.

Accurate measurements of your space are then transferred digitally and our CAD operator assures that sink specs and placements as well as stone pattern direction have the best fit.

Fabrication

To ensure quality, we inspect selected slabs for any imperfections and match patterns to the approved layout.

We then cut the stone using a bridge saw or water jet to fit your template.

Once cut from the slab, pieces are then taken to a CNC machine where stone edges are smoothed out and edge profiles are added. Later, every piece of stone goes through a rigorous finishing stage assuring that the edges are smooth and every imperfection is fixed and impossible to detect.

Installation

Our installation crew carefully lays the stone pieces in place, seals them with color-matched epoxy, and installs any coordinating backsplash.

We assure proper fit, smooth out seams, install under-mounted sinks, and provide care instructions for your new countertops.

Care & Maintenance

For daily care, we recommend using mild, non-abrasive soaps and water. Dawn or 50/50 mix of vinegar and water are great for daily clean up.

Do not use a Magic Eraser. It's abrasive and it will dull stone surfaces by taking the polish right off.

Maintaining your countertops is easier than you think. No strong chemicals are needed as long as you remember to clean up spills and routinely wash the surfaces after use. Your engineered stones should last a lifetime. They're tough and are highly resistant to stains, scratches, and impacts. They are an investment, therefore worth looking after.

If you spill oil-based liquids, such as grease or milk, this may become a stain if allowed to set. To remove, make a paste out of baking soda and water, slather it on the oil marks, cover it and let it sit for several hours or overnight.

Use baking soda and hydrogen peroxide on water-based marks. Coffee, juice and wine may leave marks and penetrate the stone if it's not cleaned up immediately. Add just enough hydrogen peroxide to baking soda to make a paste. Apply it to any water-based stains or marks, cover and let it sit overnight.

If you want to disinfect your countertops with more than just vinegar and water, use isopropyl alcohol and water. Mix 2 parts isopropyl alcohol to 1 part water. Spray on the countertop, and let it sit for three to five minutes. Rinse with water and dry with a soft dishcloth.

Non-glossy (leathered, suede or honed) finishes on stones will require more frequent attention as fingerprint markings, oils in the skin, or even water spots will be more noticeable and harder to clean.
