

Frank Thompson Jr. Gospel Bio

Frank Thompson Jr. is a native of New Orleans and Maestro extraordinaire. Frank's love of gospel music started at a very early age, fostered by his mother and father. His mother would bring Frank Jr. into the choir stand with her on Sunday mornings, and he would listen to his father play the guitar and was fascinated by the sounds it made. By the age of three, Frank Jr. was dragging his father's guitar around the house, and breaking the strings trying to play. At the early age of seven, he was singing solo for his church choir, and by age eleven he was playing bass guitar for a number of gospel groups, including: The Spiritual Hires, The Stars Of Heaven, Avondale Community Choir, and The Heavenly Stars. Frank has played with some of the great local artists of New Orleans, as well as some of the great gospel singers of our time like James Cleveland, Walter Hawkins, James Moore, and Rance Allen. Past gospel recordings include: "Something Old, Something New", "Show The World You Care" (which was recorded after Hurricane Katrina), "When You Pray For Me/ Say My Name" & "I Miss You". Frank is currently working on a 14 song album entitled "Can You Use Me Now" with the first single, "It's Another Day" to be released soon.

Frank Thompson Jr. is a gifted and talented musician. His deep faith in God influences his musical endeavors and provides him with the necessary drive and motivation to fulfill his calling of composing, arranging and performing music that is soothing, uplifting and predestined to motivate its listener. As you sit back and listen to the music of Frank Thompson, allow it to embrace your heart and it will ease your mind and soul. You will undeniably discover that it is truly inspirational and spirit-filled.
