

Building an understanding of autistic girls:
How do sensory experiences impact autistic girls' education?

Are you the parent or guardian of an autistic girl? Would your child (with your consent) be willing to share their own views, in their own (written) words about their sensory experiences?

I am an autistic student researcher (and mum to my own autistic girl) at Sheffield Hallam University. I am currently collecting data for my master's dissertation on autistic adolescent girl's sensory experiences in education. Autistic girl's voices are rarely heard in research and I believe their perspective is immensely valuable and essential to our understanding and ability to provide fit for purpose education.

If your daughter is between 11 and 17, has received an autism diagnosis, is living in the UK and would like to help with this project by answering some questions about their sensory experiences and education in an online questionnaire please email me for more information about the project and a link to the questionnaire.

zoe.field@student.shu.ac.uk

This research has been approved by the ethics committee at Sheffield Hallam University.
Supervisor: Andy Bullough.