He combines elements of cubism, pop art, and graffiti painting in his work, using vibrant colors and bold patterns as a visual expression of hope and happiness. Born in Recife, in the Northeast of Brazil, Britto lived an extremely modest childhood while growing up among a big family of eight brothers and sisters. However, his innate creativity allowed Britto to fill his life with images of a bigger and more beautiful world beyond his own. Self-taught at an early age, he painted what he saw and what he imagined on surfaces such as newspapers, cardboard, or any scraps that he could find. With an inordinate passion to excel, he prospered academically. Still, Britto's artistic nature eventually led him to seek experiences outside the classroom. In 1983, Britto to Paris where he was introduced to the works of Matisse and Picasso. After exhibiting in a few galleries and private shows, Britto was encouraged to travel to the United States where Pop Art was flourishing. Britto has lived in Miami, Florida since 1989. Shortly after Britto arrived in the United States, Michel Roux, founder of Absolute Vodka's Absolute Art Ad Campaign, happened by Britto's first studio in Coconut Grove, Florida. Roux quickly asked Britto to reinterpret the famous bottle, which would be published and seen by millions. Britto has completed other corporate works for the 2016 Presidential campaign of Governor Jeb Bush as well as for Monsanto, Bain Capital, Movado, Philip Morris, Academi (formerly Blackwater), Disney, Enrico Coveri, Pepsi, the United Nations, BMW, and Royal Caribbean Cruises.[Britto has one main art gallery in Miami, on South Beach on Lincoln Road.

Artist and Sculptor Michael Wilkinson's art is imbued with themes as universal as they are timeless. His work resonates with and affirms the highest yearnings of the human spirit. From the beginning, Wilkinson's aim was to work exclusively in bronze, but in 1984 he became interested in clear acrylic, finding in its optical properties new possibilities for conveying the ideas central to his art. Now Michael Wilkinson devotes himself to creating both bronze and acrylic sculpture. Wilkinson's work is very much of the same school of Frederick Hart.

USD 30 - 150

Tibetan Monk/Buddha Hindu Statue marked as Universal statuary corp Chicago Il 1962 and numbered (#765), measures. 11? ? 10.5W . Universal Statuary Corp. was an American, Chicago-based, statue manufacturer. Jack and Leo Lucchesi were brothers that founded the Universal Statuary Corp in the 1930s. Jack ran the business, Leo ran production. The company produced piggy banks, plaques and (by the late 1930s) large store displays, including Indian statues for western themed restaurants. In the 1950s, they produced chalkware lamps, usually featuring paired male and female figures, and other home decor that is widely collected today. The company employed many immigrant artisans to design the chalkware and plaster figures and produce the statues, lamps, home decor pieces and display advertising figures. In the 1950s they moved to a new building located on Ogden Ave., where they began working with experimental composites. There they transitioned from chalkware to resins and came up with a material "FiberClad InFrangible", and guaranteed it would not break or chip. The company employed plastic in the 1970s.

471: Anatoly Zverev (Russia 1931-1986) Still Life w/bottles Fruits Mixed MEDIA Gouache watercolor on Paper SD 1,500 - 2,500

Anatoly Zverev (Russian, 1931-1986) Original watercolor gouache mixed media painting on paper. Still life with Bottles and Fruits, ca.1980. Signed and dated multiple times. In Excellent condition and very nicely framed. Gorgeous! Measures 41 x 60 cm / 28" x 22" inches including frame). His works have been sold by all major world-famous auction houses including Sotheby's and Christie's. This work is 100% Authentic and was bought at Shapiro Auction's New York 7 years ago. Please contact us with any questions. In-house shipping by UPS or FedEx. About Anatoly Zverev --Anatoly Timofeevich Zverev was a member of the non-conformist movement and a founder of Russian Expressionism in the 1960s. He was born in Moscow. In 1954, he entered the Moscow Regional Art College, from which he was expelled due to his unconventional conduct. He independently developed as an artist and first came into contact with original works of Western abstract art at the 1957 Global Youth and Students Festival in Moscow an international event that marked the beginning of Khrushchev's thaw in the Soviet Union. Zverev's work was based on deep philosophical convictions, particularly the idea that everything is in constant change. His intention was to render direct sensations, and he worked at great speed in a temperamental, even tempestuous style, which may be termed figurative Tachism. His oils, watercolors and gouache portraits, animal paintings, and still lifes always retain an underlying naturalism, which was transformed through impulsive and playful brushwork until it verges on the abstract. Almost from the very beginning of his career, Zverev received moral and financial support from well-known Moscow art collector George Costakis. Costakis, later said that Anatoly was one of the most talented artists in Soviet Russia, a unique phenomenon?. Costakis brought his work to the attention of the West, (the first exhibition abroad was at Galerie Motte, Geneva, in 1965). Zverev's work was admired by Picasso, and he exhibited around the world. The Russian painter Robert Falk said Artists of that caliber are born only in 100 years?. However, he did not have a solo show in Russia until shortly before his death in 1986 and his work was exhibited in small, underground galleries. Throughout his career, he was harassed and persecuted by the Soviet authorities especially as his international success grew. The Great Picasso used to send his best wishes to the best Russian graphic artist? with every visitor from Moscow. He surrounded himself with a small group of friends who would be able to support him. He lived a hand-to-mouth existence, never knowing where he would spend the next night. He was indifferent to material values and always wore shabby clothes. A few days before his sudden death (in December 1986) he wrote on a slip of paper: Art should be free. Though it is very hard. Because human life is not free.? Thousands and thousands gathered at his funeral in 1986 to pay their last respects. After his death, there was a major retrospective exhibition for several months in the major art museum of Moscow. The exhibition had to be extended as people were queuing up to get inside around the clock. Anatoly Zverev's works can be found in The Pushkin State Museum of Fine Arts (Moscow), the State Russian Museum, The State Tretyakov Gallery (Moscow), the Museum of Contemporary Art (Moscow), Zimmerli Art Museum at Rutgers University (USA) and many public and private collections in Russia, USA and Europe. In 1992, the Zverev Center was founded. The museum is called in honor of Anatoly Zverev.

533: HENRY ELINSON -Listed California/Russia 1935-2010 Modernist AVANT-GARDE Nude Figural INK Pastel USD 750 - 1,000

DescriptionHENRY ELINSON (Listed Artist California/Russia 1935-2010). Modernist AVANT-GARDE Nude Figural Graphic Ink Pastel, Ca. 1987 . (framed size: 30" x 24") signed lower right. Provenance: Gallery Paule Anglim, 14 Geary St, San Francisco, CA. Price was approximately $5000.00 at gallery. Also as a comparison, a painting by Elinson, a 50" x 38" titled Mother and Child with a Run Sun, 1994, with an estimate of $5000 to $7000 that was on Shapiro Auctions, New York 4/17/2008.--- Biography --Henry Elinson by Martha Casanave,1980The present retrospective of art works by Henry Elinson, a native of St. Petersburg, Russia, and a former member of nonconformist art circles of the Soviet underground, includes pastels and works on paper created in the three decades since his immigration to the USA in 1973. The artist generally avoids categorization of his own style, following as he says Duke Ellington, who characterized music only as ?good? or ?bad?. Nevertheless, art works by Pavel Filonov, Amadeo Modigliani, Francis Bacon, post-swing jazz, and poetry by Joseph Brodsky have played an influential role in his life and his art. According to Naum Gabo, Elinson, perhaps more than many other Soviet ?migr? artists, has acquired his own vision and a most characteristic individual style. His work is instantly recognizable, even if unsigned or poorly reproduced, and his dedication to his artistic vision is unwavering. Here is what Elinson says about his own art: ?I don?t use forms or colors as symbols, only as elements of composition? I produce paintings, not philosophical tracts? I want the viewer to be free to discover whatever he likes. I believe in spontaneity.

??My heart is filled with visions, dreams, and hallucinations? Indeed, Elinson?s drawings, far from being solely formal exercises, are populated by images from his inner world, rather than the empirical reality. One exception is the work illustrating poems by Joseph Brodsky and Henry Lyman. According to W. S. Hurst (1), Elinson?s work is an orchestration of figurative and abstract forms ? a very difficult and treacherous endeavor. The weightlessness of the floating lines and shapes in his drawings and pastels leads one into the unconscious world of dreams, where people, animals, and story lines draw together in unexpected ways. Despite a remarkable stylistic uniformity of Elinson?s compositions, the relationships between elements in different drawings are in constant flux. Figurative shapes and abstract shapes combine; geometric shapes and organic shapes balance. The intertwining figures, volumetric and rounded, are a frequent element ? one shape is visible through another, both translucent, existing outside gravity, and exquisitely drawn. Often, there is a fantasy on the theme of a female torso. Whereas torsos known from antiquity are the surviving fragments of the vanished whole, Elinson?s torsos according to V. Kreid (2) are finished objects. They, unlike classical torsos, lack the subject that is independent of the artist and instead possess the author?s subjectivity. Elinson?s works also seem to portray the struggle between masculine and feminine elements. According to A. Rannit (3), the geometrical forms, combined with female torsos, lift sex out of its established contexts to a search for pure form. The images have a strangely primitive quality, their vacant-eyed totemic figures are either engaged in rituals or separating from each other. Leaping horses and dogs, according to D. Brookman (3), exist in uneasy relationships with the world they inhabit, and there is an eerie quality of magic, mystical detachment. Elinson?s art has been described by J. Bowlit (4) as a series of negations; it is neither autobiographical, nor philosophical, not even distinctly Russian. But what it is not reveals what it is: compositions that make us take a moment, contemplate, and look into our own inner worlds with the sense elusive recognition and uneasy wonder.

621: DISNEY COMPLETE Kirk Collection Magic of Disney Silver Lot of 12 Coins 1974

VERY GOOD CONDITION. A matching set of 12x Disney coins made in 1974 and 1973, of 925 Sterling silver. They are stamped with the number 1115 on their edges, making them all the same serial numbers. These are large, heavy, impressive, charming, and intrinsically beautiful. Each coin is just over 2" in diameter, about 3/16" thick, and weighs over 70 grams. They vary in thickness because all the figures are in relief, standing out significantly from the front of each coin. Their condition also varies, because they have been handled. A few are nearly pristine, but most have differing degrees of wear, from small scuffs and scratches to small nicks and dents, especially on the sharp raised edges on each front. The total scale weight of all 12 is 27.5 troy ounces, or 855.35 grams. Comes as shown, with no box or papers.Inventory #CPB
