

Don Martin is an author of books about magic and big questions. His most recent non-fiction work, The Dabbler's Guide to Witchcraft (Simon & Schuster, 2021), examined self-described "spiritual nones" who wish to fashion a spiritual life integrating science, critical thinking, and civil rights while also avoiding pitfalls like fraudulent psychics or cultural appropriation.

He has published two collections of poetry, the most recent being while I wait to be a god again (2020) which debuted at #1 on Amazon's LGBT poetry chart. His first book, The Playground (2013), was selected by Barnes & Noble for their #BFestBuzz campaign.

Don is also the host of the podcast Head On Fire, which speaks to experts in overlooked or misunderstood fields.

He lives on a horse ranch just outside Chicago with his husband and their many, many pets.

Don is represented by Kate Davids.

The above bio is approved for download and use by media publications in writings about Don Martin or works created by Don Martin.

