

About me

My name is Janvi Oza! I am based out of Houston, Texas. I love adventure, meeting new people, and telling stories from around the world. My passion is soccer, football, fútbol (whatever you want to call it). I speak five languages and I'm a proud Indian-American.

I was always fascinated by sports and I initially thought I wanted to be a press secretary, but through my college years I discovered I wanted to create engaging content, manage impactful campaigns, connect brands/athletes to their community, and, most of all - tell stories.

Over the past years I have built a client roster that I am proud of, along with forming lasting relationships. Now, I've decided to launch my passion project "Janvi Media". I have aspirations of taking me and my brand globally - connecting each of us through sports!

Thank you for taking the time to read this - I would love to learn more about you.
