

Send Kelp

The first documentary feature by award-winning filmmaker Blake McWilliam, SEND KELP! follows Frances Wallace, a self-professed “Seaweed Nerd”, as she starts a kelp farm off the west coast of Canada. But to coax a crop from the wild Pacific, she’ll need help from scientists, wild harvesters, and entrepreneurs who know the challenges and astonishing potential of this miraculous organism. And along the way, she’ll find a glimmer of the hope that seaweed might provide not only for our planet, but for her, too.

Combining breathtaking underwater cinematography (think MY OCTOPUS TEACHER) with a fun, quirky cast of characters, SEND KELP! explores many remarkable surprises about this game-changing organism and how it, along with the efforts of entrepreneurs like Frances, just might help change the world.

ABOUT THE SCORE

Jonathan Kawchuk’s very unique and organic score includes the literal sounds of kelp, giving timber and tone to the film by creating bespoke instruments out of purposefully harvested Bull Kelp.
