Introduction

WHY THIS GUIDE?

Substance use has broad-reaching impacts across our community. It affects not only people who use drugs (PWUD) themselves but the entire community.

This guide serves as an evolving referral resource for people PWUD, people in recovery, their families, friends, and loved ones, and professionals and community members who support them.

A RESOURCE BY AND FOR THE COMMUNITY

The guide was developed in partnership with the service providers listed within and is reviewed on an ongoing basis by those who access these services, namely PWUD and people in recovery.

It is periodically reviewed by the Harford County Harm Reduction Community Advisory Board, a coalition of consumers of these services, their families and friends, and representatives of groups that support them.

THE HARM REDUCTION APPROACH

This guide was developed with harm reduction principles in mind, as detailed below. It emphasizes 1) the health and wellness of PWUD and 2) a respect for their autonomy, the right to decide what services they want to access and when.

PRINCIPLES OF HARM REDUCTION

Harm reduction is a set of practical strategies and ideas aimed at reducing negative consequences associated with drug use.

Naloxone, Safer use, and More

Harm reduction emphasizes minimizing harm and maximizing wellness, regardless whether a person wants to or is ready to modify their substance use.

Naloxone, fentanyl test strips, and tools for safer use, including education on how to keep a person safe.

Naloxone (Narcan®)

Naloxone is the opioid overdose antidote, available intranasally as Narcan®.

harfordcountyhealth.com/naloxone-training

Naloxone and overdose response training are free and available to both individuals and organizations. Training is available virtually and in person upon request. Naloxone is available via pick-up or contactless delivery.

Klein's ShopRite of Harford County

Narcan® is available for free at all Harford County Klein's ShopRite locations.

Aberdeen, Bel Air (Main St. & Festival), Cardiff, Forest Hill, and Riverside.

Call the Health Department at (410) 612-1779 for questions.

There may be a max number of boxes of Narcan® available per person at one time. There is no limit on number of times you may request Narcan® at the pharmacy.

Other Pharmacies

Maryland pharmacists are permitted to dispense naloxone without a prescription. They are not required to do so and may or may not have naloxone in stock. You should call first to confirm availability. If you go to any pharmacy other than ShopRite, you will be expected to self-pay or bill to your insurance.

Detoxification and Withdrawal Management

Individuals who wish to stop or significantly reduce their substance use often require medical assistance to do so safely.

Rapid detoxification from alcohol is extremely dangerous. Those experiencing alcohol withdrawal should call 9-1-1 and immediately seek emergency care.

For people who use opioids, periods of abstinence can mean higher risk for overdose if they begin to use again. For some people, medications that minimize withdrawal symptoms and cravings help to enter and sustain recovery and reduce risk of overdose. Providers of these medications are listed in the Outpatient Substance Use Treatment section.

Recovery Housing

Substance use and housing challenging often go hand in hand. If someone wants to make positive changes around their substance use, doing so without stable housing can be next to impossible.

Different recovery housing providers offer different types of housing programs. Descriptors for these are listed next to each entry below.

Cost can vary significantly between programs. Details regarding funding support are available in the next section.

Some providers allow residents to take medications for opioid use disorder while others do not. These details are noted as follows. When a max dose is set, it is given in parentheses.

Treatment and housing can be important parts of a person's journey. Unfortunately, cost is sometimes a barrier. The organizations below are often able to provide funding or support a person in navigating payment barriers.

Funding is not guaranteed and may be dependent upon insurance status, income, place of residence, medications a person is currently taking, mental health status, and/or intention to make changes to a person's alcohol or drug use.

Funding may also be limited to a certain amount or to a certain length of time.

Courts may sometimes order treatment and/or education for people who are charged with a DUI or DWI.

Legal aid may also advise enrollment in DUI/DWI education for clients at risk for certain drug- or alcohol-related criminal charges.

These education/treatment programs may fulfill these requirements and may or may not be covered by insurance.

If you do not wish to self-pay, some outpatient (OP/IOP) programs will fulfill this need and many do accept health insurance. Refer to these programs listed in the Outpatient Substance Use Treatment section.
