About Us

Dating back over 25 years, the Brilliant Customer Service and Service with a Sale system was created.

Starting life with American Express (the client) needed a solution to reverse falling renewals and poorly regarded service experience.

The careful and thoughtful bespoke creation of two courses and follow-up coaching were so successful, American Express put over 800 people through the courses.

Since then these courses have been constantly developed and tailored. Today they have been combined with two new services - Customer service assessment and at the desk coaching.

How Brilliant Customer Service adds real value

In any well run organisation, customer service is a core component. It is the basis of converting leads into sales and one off sales into life long customers. That is, customers that spend more, come back and recommend you to others.

In a customer support operation, efficient and effective problem solving and service response is also vital to both productivity and customer retention.

BCS is able to provide the expertise and resources companies may lack and to advise on how they can improve their service by training their staff in the essential skills they need to exceed expectations. This can be further reinforced with at the desk skills coaching, removing the need to be away from the service, sales or support desk.

At the desk skills coaching - Real time coaching with e Learning support modules. Brilliant Customer Service at the desk coaching system is a great way to improve skills without time away from customers or the support desk.

Interactive live training workshops - There are two main courses with a number of different versions of each. Suitable for B2B and B2C markets.

Service with a Sale - For all pre-sales and sales staff, how to stop selling and help customers buy.

Brilliant Customer Service - For all non commercial support and post sales service. Ideal for customer support, customer retention and technical support.

What qualities are BCS looking for in a Consulting Partner?

If you have a passion for customer service, business development, keenness to help others and a desire to work for yourself, this is a great start.

Successful Consulting Partners will have outstanding communication skills, confidence to stand in front of different groups of people approximately two to three days a week and be self starters, with an ability to create and nurture long- term relationships with clients.
