English Version

Udo Rutschmann

is a contemporary sculptor and artist. He initially studied philosophy and art history in Augsburg before moving to London Metropolitan University (former UNL) to study architecture under Adam Caruso. Subsequently, he pursued an MFA degree in sculpture at the Alanus University of Arts and Social Sciences in Bonn/Alfter, where he was taught by Jochen Brem and Andreas Kienlin.

At the heart of Rutschmann's artistic practice lies a profound exploration of the human condition in all its complexity. His works delve into themes such as identity, transience, and the search for meaning.

Often large-scale, his creations are not only visually striking but also serve as philosophical inquiries, prompting viewers to reflect on their own existence and the essence of humanity.

Artistic Philosophy

Material and Materiality Rutschmann's artistic approach is deeply rooted in materiality. Each material is meticulously selected to explore its inherent expression, mood, and historical resonance. His works emphasize the physical presence of the material, utilizing its tactile qualities to forge an immediate and visceral connection between the artwork and the viewer.

This approach seeks to transcend cognitive and analytical perception, engaging the viewer on a more intuitive level.

Seriality

The artist frequently employs seriality to examine variations within a specific theme or material. This method allows him to explore subtle nuances of a concept and develop a cohesive visual language. Seriality appears in both his sculptures and drawings, with each piece contributing to a broader dialogue and forming part of a larger narrative.

Atmosphere

as the primary subject creating atmospheres is a central concern in Rutschmann's work. His sculptures and drawings are designed to evoke emotions and provoke specific moods. Through a deliberate interplay of material, form, and light, he constructs spaces that invite reflection and deceleration. Atmosphere becomes the focal point of his art, encouraging viewers to pause, question their perception, and engage with the fundamental questions of existence.

Time

The Theme of Time Time, as the fundamental dimension of human existence, is a recurring theme in Rutschmann's oeuvre, drawing inspiration from Martin Heidegger's philosophy. He investigates the perception of time and its impact on space and matter. His sculptures and drawings aim to capture fleeting moments, rendering them tangible. The atmospheres created in his work provide a reflective space, inviting viewers to contemplate their own relationship with time.

Deutsche Version

Kurzbiografie

Udo Rutschmann ist ein zeitgenössischer Bildhauer und Zeichner. Er studierte Philosophie in Augsburg und wechselte dann an die London Metropolitan University, um unter Adam Caruso Architektur zu studieren. Es folgten eine Studium der Bildhauerei an der Alanus Hochschule für Kunst und Gesellschaft, Bonn/Alfter unter Jochen Brem und Andreas Kienlin.

Im Zentrum von Rutschmanns Schaffen steht der Mensch in seiner Komplexität.

Seine Arbeiten reflektieren Themen wie Identität, Vergänglichkeit und die Frage nach dem Sinn des Daseins.

Seine zum Teil großformatigen Arbeiten sind nicht nur wirkende, visuelle Ausdrucksformen, sondern auch philosophische Erkundungen, die den Betrachter dazu anregen sollen, über die eigene Existenz und das Wesen des Menschseins nachzudenken. Bedeutung:

Material:

Rutschmanns Ansatz ist stark materialbezogen. Er nutzt Materialien um die physische Präsenz (Materialität) seiner Arbeiten zu betonen. Jedes Material wird sorgfältig ausgewählt, um seine Aussage, Stimmung und kunsthistorische „Aufladung“ auszuloten. Durch die oft stark haptischen Qualitäten seiner gewählten Materialien will Rutschmann eine Unmittelbarkeit (Direktheit) zwischen Betrachter und Arbeit entstehen lassen die den kognitiv-analytischen Wahrnehmungsvorgang überlagern soll.

Serielles Arbeiten:

Häufig arbeitet der Künstler serielle, um Variationen innerhalb eines Themas oder Materials zu erkunden. Diese Methode erlaubt es ihm, verschiedene oft nur schwach nuancierte Aspekte eines Konzepts zu erkunden und zu einer kohärente visuelle Sprache zu entwickeln. Die Serien können sowohl in der Bildhauerei als auch in seinen Zeichnungen auftreten, wobei jede Arbeit Teil eines größeren Dialogs ist.

Atmosphäre

als primärer Wahrnehmungsgegenstand:
Ein zentrales Anliegen von Udo Rutschmann ist die Schaffung von Atmosphären. Seine Arbeiten sind darauf ausgelegt, den Betrachter emotional anzusprechen und eine bestimmte Stimmung zu evozieren. Durch die gezielte Kombination von Material, Form, und Licht schafft er Räume der Reflexion und „Verlangsamung“.

Atmosphäre wird zum primären Wahrnehmungsgegenstand seiner Kunst – sie lädt dazu ein, innezuhalten und die eigene Wahrnehmung zu hinterfragen, sich mit den grundlegenden Fragen des Daseins auseinanderzusetzen.

Zeit

die „Zeitlichkeit als die grundlegende Bedeutung des Seins für die menschliche Existenz“. Martin Heidegger Ein zentrales Thema in Rutschmanns Werk ist die Zeit. Er beschäftigt sich mit der Wahrnehmung von Zeit und deren Einfluss auf den Raum und die Materie. In seinen Skulpturen und Zeichnungen versucht er, flüchtige Momente einzufangen und sie in eine greifbare Form zu bringen.

Die Atmosphäre seiner Arbeiten spielt dabei eine entscheidende Rolle – sie schafft einen Raum für Reflexion und lädt den Betrachter ein, über seine eigene Beziehung zur Zeit nachzudenken.

Ludwig Wittgenstein (1889 - 1951)

Introduction to the subsequent works on paper

The starting point for Udo Rutschmann's works on paper often lies in his three-dimensional creations. The artist develops drawing series that take the autogenerative landscapes of his three dimensional works (e.g. „Incubators“, „Oscillators“) as the basis for graphical exploration.

Using a specialized printing technique, he transfers sections of the ceramic surfaces (Incubators) onto paper. As if searching for suitable systems to structure these self-created worlds, Rutschmann overlays grids, embedding the flattened ceramic reliefs into enveloping graphite-colored fields. He stabilizes them with spatial boundaries drawn in white correction fluid.

Here, Rutschmann's architectural background becomes evident—his expertise as a trained architect, with a foundation in traditional visualization techniques beyond advanced computer software, comes into play.

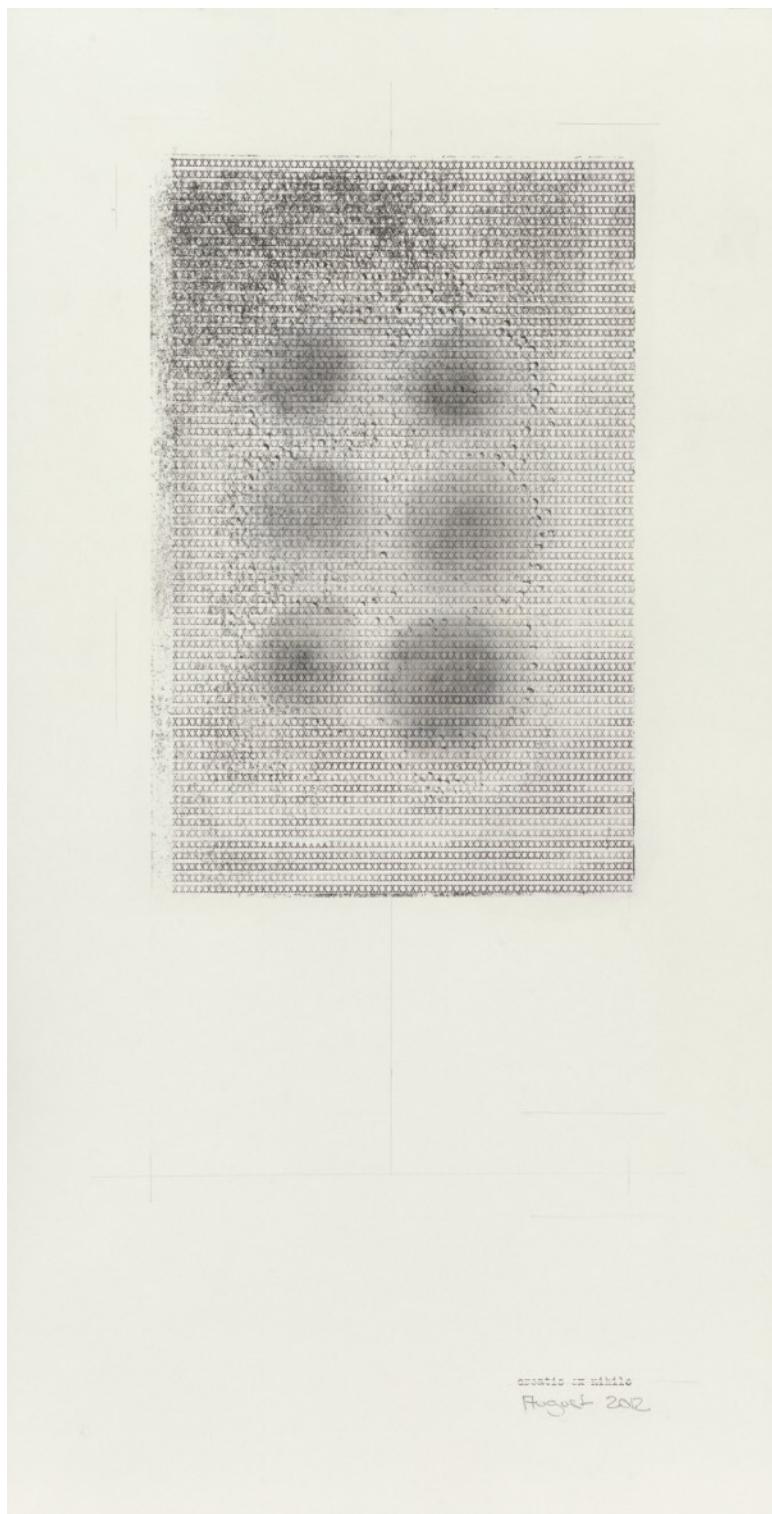

Guided by a knowledge of historical precedents, not only from concrete and constructive art, Rutschmann uses the serial approach to explore his themes in depth. Adding another layer of meaning, he incorporates text fragments onto the paper using an old mechanical typewriter.

He refers to these fragments as “scientific prose,” snippets of physics and philosophy that orbit his creative universe. These textual elements, intentionally enigmatic, do not demand decoding but instead serve to enrich the viewer's interpretive experience. By layering relief, line, text, and color, Rutschmann's paper works invite a dialogue between the physical and the conceptual, evoking questions of structure, meaning, and the tension between two- and three-dimensional spaces.
