Jeanna and I grew up in the Panhandle of Texas and the Palo Duro Canyon is the scenic attraction in the area. It is a dramatic separation of the Plains into something else - the boundary if you will between the Great Plains and a different type of terrain - not necessarily rolling hills, but different than the Plains. Those who went to New Mexico and saw the cut the Rio Grande made near Taos will see that, and much, much more in the Big Bend National Park.
