Reopen Maryland Hosts Talk Radio Special To Highlight Marylanders' Stories

Riverdale, MD—Reopen Maryland invites Governor Hogan and his staff, along with members of the public and media representatives, to tune in to the inaugural Reopen Maryland LIVE WITH EVIE talk radio event, on Sunday, Apr. 26 from 8-10 PM. Marylanders affected by statewide business closures, school closures, and restrictions on personal liberty will call in to share their stories and make their voices heard. Call-in information can be found at the Reopen Maryland Facebook page.

Media and members of the public, especially the Governor and his staff, are invited and encouraged to listen to this important program to better understand the devastating effects of Maryland's shutdown. On April 21, Reopen Maryland publicly requested that Governor Hogan collect and publicly report data and narratives on Marylanders' shut-down related financial, health, and social losses alongside COVID-19 case, hospitalization and fatality statistics. Reopen Maryland believes it is essential for government officials to hear and understand the impact of the policies they are enacting.

Reopen Maryland is a grass-roots, nonpartisan group representing over 20,000 Marylanders. We advocate for an end to the overly broad, economically and socially destructive shutdown and lockdown policies that have injured countless Maryland families and businesses and had a chilling effect upon civil rights.
